WILSON'S NEW PROTEST TO ENGLAND NOW READY

CONTINUES CONTEST OVER DELAY TO SHIPS

Washington, August 4.—President Wilson's reply to Great Britain's latest notes rejecting the American demands for relief for interferences with neutral commerce under the order in council is practically ready to be dispatched to London. Although Great Britain's notes were made public only last night, the American government knew the British views through informal conferences between American and British officials here and in London and had framed its reply before the notes actually were received. It is believed there will be little change in the answer already prepared. The American reply will continue to contest the legality of taking ships from the high seas on voyages to neutral ports. It is understood the American government will differentiate from ships on the high seas and ships which go to British ports, or which attempt to run blockades lines. The British argument that American commerce has not suf-

SWEEPS MANY STATES, DAMS GIVE FLOODING ERIE, WHERE FIFTY DIE

Death, riding on a sixty mile gale, accompanied by a cloudburst and unprecedented rain and wind storm raised its withered hand over an area of several states last night and this morning and left in its wake nearly sixty victims.

The greatest loss of life was at Erie, Pa., where the coroner places the death list at fifty. Many of the bodies have been recovered but it is hardly thought likely that the remaining number will be found. Property loss there will run into hundreds of thousands. Entire city blocks were swept away when dams gave way, releasing huge walls of water which swept down into the city from several angles, taking everything in its path.

A storm which began early this morning in New York city flooded many sections of the metropolis and sent to the bottom one ship anchored in the harbor. Two members of the crew were swept to their deaths with their ship. The damage there will amount to thousands.

Two boys in Lima, Ohio, were drowned when they attempted to lead cattle from flooded pastures. Portions of that city were flooded and damage there is also great.

The storm also swept Philadelphia where much damage was done by wind and rain. It traveled further, to Baltimore, where it rent its fury over Chesapeake Bay, tearing many pleasure crafts from their moorings and dashing them upon the shore. It then took a southerly course down the Atlantic coast, doing much damage to crops in and around Richmond, Va. No loss of lives is reported from any other sections.

Train service in all the states visited by the storm was delayed hours owing to huge washouts.

Fifty Perish As Storm And Cloudburst Hits Erie

Erie, Pa., Aug. 4.—Erie this afternoon is counting its dead following one of the most disastrous wind and rain storms that has ever visited this section.

The storm and cloudburst which came last night was responsible for about fifty deaths. Coroner D. S. Hanley announced shortly after noon. Mayor Stein stated that the death list would probably be about thirty, but after a survey of the debris, Coroner Hanley said he felt sure that it would reach at least fifty.

Fourteen bodies have been recovered so far and placed in the temporary morgue. Of these the following have been identified:

Emma Osborn, 44 of Parade street.

John Donovan, city fireman.

Sweeney Anderson, 60, of East Ninth street.

John Higgins, 40, a printer.

James Higgins.

Two Drowned In Lima

Lima, O., August 4.—Last night's cloudburst in this vicinity took a toll of two lives.

Waldo Good, 8, son of John Good, of Elida, Ohio, was drowned in Pigeon Run while helping other boys drive cows to safety from rising waters.

Keith Troyer, 11, son of Everett Troyer, of Maumee, Indiana, visiting at Dupont, Ohio, lost his life in the Blanchard river while wading, because he ventured too far.

Wrecks Boats At Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 4.—One of the fiercest storms that ever visited this section swept over Chesapeake Bay last night causing damage that will run into thousands of dollars. Along the bay hundreds of small, mainly pleasure boats were torn from their moorings and cast ashore. So far as has been learned there was no loss of life. Havre de Grace suffered severely along the water front.

Rain Damages Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—Con-siderable minor damage was done in this section early today by a heavy rainstorm which was accompanied by a high wind. Nearing three inches of rain fell and the wind reached a maximum velocity of 40 miles an hour. The railroads reported minor washouts which did not greatly delay traffic. The Delaware and Schuylkill rivers were high, the former being out of its banks at low points in this city.

HOMER SMITH CRASH TO BE INVESTIGATED

Cincinnati, August 4.—United States Steamboat Inspectors J. K. Peyton and George Dameron began an investigation today in the collision of the steamboats City of Louisville and Homer Smith near Vevay, Indiana on last Tuesday night. It is not charged that the officers or crew of either boat were guilty of any violation of regulations in connection with the collision but the United States inspectors desired to learn the facts. Varying statements have been made. The hearing today was behind closed doors and the inspectors said that nothing would be made public until after completion of the hearing.

Decision to hold an investigation, its said, grew out of the fact that Captain Holloway of the Homer Smith in a written communication declared his boat had been rammed by the City of Louisville.

THREE KILLED ON CROSSING

Urbana, O., August 4.—George Moore, 70, and his sister, Miss Sarah Moore, 5, of St. Paris, O., were instantly killed this morning near St. Paris when a buggy in which they were riding was struck by a westbound Pennsylvania passenger train. Moore's body was taken from the engine pilot and that of the woman from under the wheels. They were on their way to a farm from St. Paris when killed. Late last night Chas. Lloyd, 30, of this city, a horse dealer, was killed by a train at the same crossing.

Two Drown, New York Is Swept By Big Storm

New York, August 4.—Streets in New York City and its suburbs were turned into yellow rivers, surface and elevated traffic was badly crippled, wires were blown into a tangled network, trees uprooted and hundreds of cellars flooded in a torrential down pour that broke over the metropolitan section this forenoon to the accompaniment of a sixty mile gale.

Three inches of rain fell in four hours at Sandy Hook. Vessels were held up at the harbor entrance and during the height of the gale a small schooner, the M. V. B. Chase, from Cheverie, N. S., to Norfolk, with plaster went to the bottom. Her captain and a sailor were drowned in a small boat. Coast guards rescued the other four members of the crew.

Along the northerly coast of New Jersey the gale wrought steady there came a drizzle.

Travel On Two Systems Is Delayed Many Hours

Buffalo, August 4.—Travel between the East and West over both the Lake Shore and the Nickel Plate railroads was completely tied up from the time the cloudburst let go over Erie last night until 8 o'clock this morning when officials of both roads reported that communication had been re-established with the west over temporary single tracks.

Washouts unprecedented in depth and extent and the loss of culverts and part of one bridge through which a train crashed, it was said, was one of the worst features of the problem facing the operation.

Reports of damage to tracks began to come through before midnight and at that hour word was received that all four tracks of the Lake Shore and those of the Nickel Plate had been swept away between Erie and More-heads, the first station East. Trains that had passed through Buffalo, westbound, were recalled early today and sent over the Michigan Central's Canadian line to Detroit. These included the Twentieth Century westbound, which left New York yesterday afternoon, the Boston and Chicago special, the Southeastern special leaving New York at 4 p. m., the Lake Shore limited out of Buffalo, and the Big Four Limited, which left New York at 6:45. If a dozen east bound trains including No. 26, the eastbound Twentieth Century, due in New York at 9:40 a. m. today were held up by washouts.

The rain storm which culminated in the cloudburst at Erie, covered all of Northern Pennsylvania and Western New York. It began with a terrific downpour yesterday afternoon and continued practically without cessation all through the night and well into today.

In no place except in the immediate vicinity of Erie, however, rain approached the cloudburst stage.

One thing that gets a fellow's goat is 't' go fishin' and not get a single solitary bite and have some fellow—very likely a kid with a willow pole sit alongside and pull 'em out by the dozen. It don't take much explanation for most neutral folk 't' understand th' military value of a "strategic" retreat. Here's the dope for tomorrow:

Ohio—Generally fair tonight and Thursday. Slightly cooler tonight.

Kentucky and West Virginia—Fair tonight and Thursday.

The Gang'll Miss Pete, Otto, And Their Expert War Views But They'll Be Back

By VAN.

'S' too bad, but it can't be helped. Portsmouth is to be deprived of expert opinions on the great European war for at least a week, altho' they will probably get some advanced views on it after the lapse of that time.

For General Joffre P. Minego, and General von Hindenburg O. Maiter leave Thursday afternoon for the front. They are going into neutral territory—Atlantic City—to fight their battle for a week or ten days.

It's some combination—a Frenchman and a German, but according to the latest bulletins from their headquarters this morning they are on friendly terms and have declared an armistice for the time they are going to be in Atlantic City.

What the rest of us are going to do for authentic war news, and advice during the next week we cannot foretell. Of course we still have the daily papers, but what are they when we have Pete Minego and Otto Maiter at our nightly gatherings?

For despite the latest dispatches from the front every night, the members of the gang of followers always looked for additional information from Generals Joffre and von Hindenburg when the clans would gather for the nightly sessions.

And they always got it, too. When Pete and Otto get together Pete forgets all about the baseball dope he dispenses for the world at large in The Times, and Otto even forgets the vast amount of cash he has handled in the First National bank during that day.

Pete and Otto are going vacationing. It has been suggested to them that they take along a neutral, but they do not care to, and assert that they will make the trip without any battles, each promising to defer these until their return to Portsmouth.

But cheer up gang, Generals Joffre and von Hindenburg will be back in the near future. Content yourself now with the tales they will have to tell when they return.

"AMERICAN PROTEST UNSUSTAINABLE," SAYS ENGLAND

Washington, Aug. 4.—Great Britain's replies to the latest American representations against interference with neutral commerce, reject entirely the contention that the orders in council are illegal and justify the British course as being wholly within international law. "Unsustainable either in point of law or upon principles of international equity" is the British reply to the American protest against the blockade of neutral ports with an invitation to submit to international arbitration any cases in which the United States is dissatisfied with the action of British prize courts.

The note reiterates that Great Britain will continue to apply the orders complained of, although not without every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals, and observes that the American statistics show that any loss in trade with Germany and Austria has been more than overbalanced by the increase of other industrial activities due to the war.

In the general reply to the American representations against the orders in council Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister addressing Ambassador Page, begins by expressing the hope that he may be able to convince the administration in Washington "that the measures we have announced are not only reasonable and necessary in themselves, but constitute no more than an adaptation of the old principles of blockade to the peculiar circumstances with which we are confronted."

"I need scarcely dwell," wrote Sir Edward, "on the obligations incumbent upon the allies to take every step in their power to overcome their common enemy in view of the shocking violation of the recognized rules and principles of civilized warfare of which he has been guilty during the present struggle." Sir Edward then refers to atrocities in Belgium, poisoning of wells in German Southwest Africa, use of poisonous gases against the allied troops in Flanders, and finally the sinking of the Lusitania, to show "how indispensable it is that we should leave unimpaired no justifiable method of defending ourselves."

Coming down to the question of the allied blockade of neutral ports, the note continues: "In the various notes which I have received from your excellency the right of a belligerent to establish a blockade of the enemy's ports is admitted, a right which has obviously cut off the sea-borne exports and imports of his enemy. The contention which I understand the United States government now puts forward is that if a belligerent is so circumstanced that his commerce can pass through adjacent neutral ports as easily as through ports on his own territory his opponent has no right to interfere and must restrict his measures of blockade in such a manner as to leave such avenues of commerce still open to his adversary. This is a contention which his majesty's government feels unable to accept and which seems to them unsustainable either in point of law or upon principles of international equity."

"They are unable to admit that a belligerent violates any fundamental principle of international law by applying a blockade in such a way as to cut off the enemy's commerce with foreign countries through neutral ports, if the circumstances render such an application of the principles of blockade the only means of making it effective. The government of the United States, indeed, intimates its readiness to take into account 'the great changes which have occurred in the conditions and means of naval warfare since the rules hitherto governing legal blockade were formulated and recognizes that the form of close blockade with its cordon of ships in the immediate offing of the blockaded ports is no longer practicable in the face of an enemy possessing the means and opportunity to make an effective defense by the use of submarines, mines and air craft."

"The only question, then, which can arise in regard to the measures resorted to for the purpose of carrying out a blockade upon these extended lines, is, whether to use your excellency's words, they conform to the spirit and principles of the essence of the rules of war, and we shall be content to apply this test to the action which we have taken in so far as it has necessitated interference with neutral commerce."

Sir Edward Grey then refers to the American civil war blockade of 3,000 miles of coast with a small number of vessels, and recalls how the United States finally took recourse to 'blockade' 'neighboring neutral territory which afforded convenient quarters from which contraband could be introduced into Confederate territory and from which blockade running could be facilitated.' "Your excellency will no doubt remember," wrote Sir Edward Grey, "how, in order to meet this new difficulty, the old principles relating to contraband and blockade were developed and the doctrine of continuous voyages were applied and enforced under which goods destined to the enemy territory were intercepted before they reached the neutral ports from which they were to be re-exported."

"I'LL DO WHAT FATHER WOULD HAVE ME DO," SAYS MAN WHO WILL CARE FOR HIS UNCLE

The Ashland Independent says: "James Anderson, who while sick and despondent, swallowed carbolic acid at his room in the Conley hotel some weeks ago, has gone to the home of his nephew, Elmer Anderson, of Portsmouth, to spend his declining days."

"When he was able to leave the hospital, Mr. Anderson was removed to the county home, as he was not able to work. His nephew, who works for a shoe firm in Portsmouth, did not learn of his uncle's condition until last week and he came at once to Ashland and took him home with him. James Anderson was at first loath to burden his nephew and widowed mother with his care, but the nephew, who had taken to the home with him a new suit of clothes, and complete outfit for his uncle, would not accept no for an answer, and took Mr. Anderson to Portsmouth with him, saying, 'Uncle Jim you won't have a thing to do but sleep and eat and you can put your feet under our table three times a day, if there is anything on it or not, I know that is what father would want you to do.'

"The love for the memory of his father and the respect for his uncle shown by young Mr. Anderson, brought tears to all who witnessed it, and the 'God bless you and reward you,' which followed him as he and his uncle left the home were from the heart."

Washington, August 4.—General Maytorena, the Villa governor of Sonora, is preparing to withdraw his troops, which have been protecting American settlers against Indians, from the Yaqui valley and has declared that if American marines are forced to land, precipitating a conflict, the responsibility will lie with the Carranza forces now moving into the valley.

Major General Funston, commanding the border forces reported today that news of Maytorena's plans had reached him. Several weeks ago when the Yaquis and Villa troops were threatening to resist the landing of the American rescue force from Admiral Howard's squadron, the situation was smoothed out by the dispatch of sufficient Mexican troops to protect the settlers. With their withdrawal more depredations against Americans are feared.

England Observes War's Anniversary

London, August 4.—The British empire united today in prayerful observance of the anniversary of the declaration of war against Germany. In virtually every city and town in the British Isles, as well as in all parts of the Dominions and colonies over seas, the day was one of intercession and prayer, with meetings of common aim and purpose to ask the aid of the Almighty for ultimate victory in a cause which the British peoples consider just and righteous.

The chief ceremony was held in London, with services attended by King George and Queen Mary at St. Paul's Cathedral. The king and his consort drove to the cathedral in an open landau, though cheering crowds lined the thoroughfares.

VILLA PLACES AGENT IN FOREIGN STORES

El Paso, Texas, August 4.—Business was again being transacted today by native merchants in Chihuahua, Mexico, according to official advices to Villa headquarters at Juarez, across the border from here, after a suspension of several days by order of General Villa, who claimed exorbitant prices were being exacted from the people.

Resumption, however, was said to be conducted under the regulations laid down by General Villa at the meeting of merchants held Saturday at Chihuahua City. The owners and employees superintend the operations of the stores, but "interventors" were placed in each store to prevent his regulations being violated. The Chihuahua commercial situation, in a modified form, has been extended to Juarez. Instructions were received today by the customs department to hold temporarily all importations until some definite agreement was reached in Chihuahua. This order was said to apply to importations stored in the customs warehouse and aboard

MAKES LAST MOVE TO AVERT STRIKE

New York, Aug. 4.—In a final effort to avert a strike of the 60,000 workers on women's garments in New York City, Mayor Mitchell's council of conciliation called a conference for today of the representatives of the garment workers' union and of the cloak and shirt makers' union. The union had given the manufacturers until midnight last night to accede to the findings of the council of conciliation but consented to extend the time limit until noon today in order to hold the conference. Should this meeting fail to settle the differences it was feared that a strike would soon begin as the union has voted in favor of it.

The bride was given away by her father and her brother, Frank Page, was Mr. Loring's best man. ## OBITUARY

Edward J. Morgan Funeral

The body of Edward J. Morgan, late superintendent of the fitting-room of the Excelsior shoe factory, was laid to rest in Greenlawn cemetery shortly after noon Wednesday, following solemn and impressive funeral services at the Second Presbyterian church. The large auditorium of the church was filled with mourning relatives and friends, the majority of whom followed the funeral cortege to the cemetery.

Services at the church were delayed for a half hour owing to the late arrival of the B. & O. S-W. train, which brought sixty people from Mr. Morgan's birth-place, Oak Hill, including immediate relatives, Rev. R. O. Williams, pastor of his old church at Oak Hill, and intimate friends of his youth and early manhood.

One section of the church was reserved for the employees of the Excelsior shoe company, the factory being closed from ten o'clock until one out of respect to Mr. Morgan's memory. Another section was occupied by members of Calvary Commandery, Knights Templar, and the members of John E. Williams' Bible class of the Second Presbyterian church, of both of which he was a valued member. The immediate family and relatives occupied seats in the center section.

As the touching tributes to the memory of the late Mr. Morgan were uttered, realization of the loss sustained by the family, his business and social associates, and the community, was emphasized and a feeling of immeasurable grief settled over all.

The church chancel was a bower of floral designs from the organizations to which he belonged, and from his friends from all over the city, attesting to the high esteem in which he was held in the circles in which he moved.

WILLIS AND THE PRESIDENCY

The New York Sun, which is hoping for the election of a Republican as president to succeed Woodrow Wilson, does not grow enthusiastic over the mention of the name of one, Frank B. Willis, governor of Ohio. In fact the Sun is dismayed at the mention of Willis, judging by some of the recent utterances in its editorial columns for it speaks in one editorial of "his hopeless unfitness for responsible office."

Furthermore, the Sun, in discussing Governor Willis as a possible contender for the Republican nomination for president says of him:

"He is one of the bountiful supply of favorite son offerings for the next Republican convention's consideration. So is Mr. Fairbanks and so is Mr. LaFollette and so is Mr. Norris and so on far down in the roll call until the heart grows weary at the mere thought of the roaring cataracts of oratorical rant the suffering thousands in the convention hall will endure before all this litter is cleared away and the business of nominating a candidate for the presidency begins."

This extraordinary attack upon the Ohio governor by one of the really great newspapers of the country, and a newspaper favorable to his own party at that, is not only remarkable for its bitterness but also remarkable for the fact that it finds an answering echo in the minds of the great majority of the citizens of Ohio who have had best opportunity to judge Mr. Willis in action as an official; this view too finds expression not alone from the ranks of those opposed to Mr. Willis politically, but it finds bitterest expression in the ranks of his own party. There are thousands upon thousands of Republicans in Ohio today who regretfully say that Mr. Willis has not measured up to his job, that he is a sore disappointment and they receive mention of his possible candidacy for president with derisive smiles. Down here in Southern Ohio this feeling of hopelessness over the record made so far by Mr. Willis as governor is especially rampant among Republicans. "The men who have been recognized as the bone and sinew of the Republican party for many years are the most outspoken in proclaiming what the New York Sun aptly describes as Governor Willis' "hopeless unfitness for responsible office" and they are equally outspoken in their determination to vote against him if the party is so short-sighted as to renominate him for governor next year.

It is remarkable, too, that while the Sun, representative of the conservative element of the Republican party, is speaking of Governor Willis' "hopeless unfitness for responsible office," Victor Murdock, one of the best and brightest of the Progressive party leaders, should also be attacking the Willis administration as "hopelessly reactionary and blindly stand-pat, clinging to the old frazzled and worn-out ideas that brought Republicanism into disrepute and disaster." It all serves to only bring out in bold relief the widespread sentiment of thinking people that Governor Willis has failed to measure up to the promise of his campaign for election.

He has been tried and he has been found wanting.

One of our New Boston friends seriously writes us to say that we are mistaken about them having a paved street. He says that they haven't any yet but are going to have a lot of them some of these days. "All right friend. But you see you have been so cut off from the rest of the world by your infernally bad roads and temporary roads that our only source of information is by the grape vine wireless and we probably misinterpreted the code, making it you had a paved street instead of going to have a paved street sometime before frost."

Our good young governor should order out our militia company to assist in recovering the pair of pants stolen from his appointee, Deputy Oil Inspector George Keller. If it isn't les majeste to steal an office holder's pants while he is in swimming and thereby force him to walk home in a barrel, then there can be no such crime in the American calendar.

The erudite and sapient Dolly Wise tells an anxious inquirer the Golden Rod is the national flower. We don't believe it. In the first place no competent authority has decreed the Golden Rod the national flower, and, in the second, even if it had, the fact would remain that the Golden Rod isn't a flower at all, but a noxious and sickening weed.

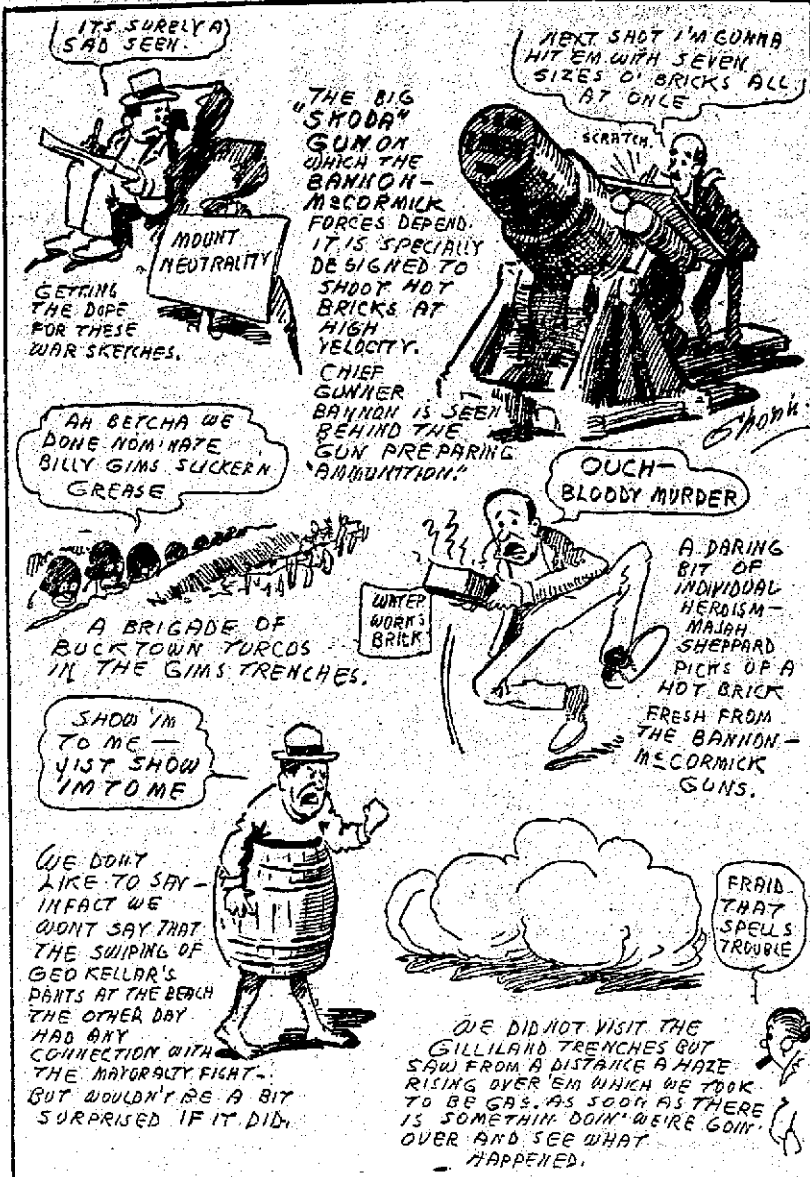

The funny things now is each of the five Republican candidates for the mayoralty nomination has enough votes pledged to give him a majority over all the others combined.

Now, for a fact, we do hope that temporary bridge won't do any more temporary business before Contractor Ruel gets ready to tear it up.

Poverty brings strange bed-fellows, but not a circumstance to those thrown together by politics of the spoils variety. Just look at "Big" and "Mooge" fighting the gang and George Sheppard the bravest little gangster of 'em all.

Villa shouts "to hell with the United States," and then in the next breath vows he has had enough of them. Some men just can't be consistent.

SKETCHES FROM THE G. O. P. FRONT.

JEALOUSY AND SARCASTIC

Editor Dan Davis, of the Jackson Sun gets mad, then sarcastic, at our calling upon him to make good on his bluff about river city industries going to locate in Jackson town to get away from the floods. He flings off this remark in reply:

"Don't get excited, now! We had reference to big towns and big industries. However, if you should happen to see some of our 'boaters' coming down with market baskets on their arms there may be some danger of Portsmouth losing a few shoe lasts and cow leathers, which seems to be the products that the River City survives on. What a jealous lot that Times bunch is anyway. The thing that's worrying them, however, is not that industries are clamoring for a location in our city but because Jackson county has such big men. For instance you have never heard of a Portsmouth man being connected with the Redpath or any other Chautauqua. Scioto county never had a state chairman. These honors are common in Jackson county and we do not blame the Portsmouth fellows for being jealous."

Of course since the principal industry of Jackson is the tail of one of our cow leather plants we can understand how Editor Dan can get such a false impression of the true greatness of our peerless city. And if we catch any of the Jackson market basket brigade prowling around down here we will corral them, ride 'em around town and give them something to talk about for the rest of their natural lives, that is if their nervous systems survive the shock of brief existence in a bustling city.

And as for Chautauqua lecturers, we guess we can stack Judge Blair up against Doc Hoy any old time. But when it comes to other great men such as state chairmen, we sorrowfully admit that Jackson has it on us. However, if we did have one we wouldn't try to show him honor by giving him a free ride in an undertaker's wagon after he came home from a victorious battle; nor would we stand around helplessly while the beneficiary of his victory booted him away from the scene of battle.

Good evening, Dan. Will that hold you for a while?

New York, August 2.—The newspaper boys who were assigned by their city editors to do the Becker electrocution left New York for Sing Sing all puffy faced and white. Most of them were old timers and have seen a lot of death chair horrors but they seem never able to rise above the ghastliness of the execution of the death sentence.

Martin Green, of the Evening World, has probably seen more electrocutions than any other Park Row reporter of the present crop and he never fails to become nauseated by the sight. Every newspaper reporter who has covered an electrocution or hanging is one of the staunchest kind of adherents for the abolishment of capital punishment.

He intimated that quite a sizeable roll might be annexed if he would permit some of his stories to be made into film productions. Giffen had visions of husky commissions. Five hours later the bump came and here it is.

"Thanks. Motion picture rights to my fictions not discussable," Henry James.

Then he grabbed Tannenbaum by the back of the trousers and threw him into durance vile. Later on Tannenbaum and the sheriff held a love feast and made

TAKE EVERY PRECAUTION

Eye strain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eye strain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surface of the lenses and the eyes are irritated by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes. These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eye strain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

We will be pleased to show you Toric Lenses and explain their advantages.

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, August 4.—After a mixed opening today the stock market developed a sudden accession of strength with a keen demand for Steel and oil shares, coppers and various other industrials. Trading again ran largely to the war stocks, and Bethlehem steel outdid its previous rapid advances. It opened at 27 1/2, as compared with yesterday's close of 26 1/2 and on the next sale jumped to 28 1/2. It then advanced to 28 7/8, an over night rise of 19 points and a gain of 12 points over its previous high record. California Petroleum was marked up 3/4 and Crucible steel 3/4. United States Steel rose 1 1/2 to 69 1/2, the best figure of the year. Railway Steel Springs, Mexican Petroleum, American Locomotive, Tennessee Copper, Smelters, American Car and Foundry and Allis Chalmers rose 1 to 2 points.

The market held up well during the morning and in some instances gains were increased. Trading was confined in great part to industrials and the movement was narrower than yesterday, when railroad stocks were in demand at rising prices. Transactions in United States Steel were heavy and the quotation was advanced 2 points to 69 1/2, exceeding the highest figures of 1914 and 1913 when the stock was on dividend basis.

Bethlehem Steel's rise was increased 21 points to 239. Many industrials gained from one to four points, but among the railroads changes were slight. Bonds were firm.

Further encouraging advices from the steel and copper trade accentuated the late rise in these stocks, but the movement in other shares was listless. The closing was strong.

Specialties moved upward today with the same facility as heretofore, despite the sluggishness of the railroad list. Buying originated largely with the professionals, but the scope of demand indicated a lively outside interest.

The fact that the country offerings were next to nothing tended to keep the wheat market on the upgrade. The close was steady.

Urgent shipping demand helped later to bring about an additional rise. The market finished steady at 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 to 1 1/2 net advance.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, August 4.—Black rust reports becoming more numerous gave the wheat market today a decided upturn. According to one expert, fifty per cent of the crop in southern North Dakota was in danger. There were also advices indicating that all the winter wheat still uncut in the fields south of the Nebraska region would be virtually a complete loss. Opening prices here, which ranged from 1/4 off to 3/4 up, were followed by a general advance to well above last night's level.

Abnormally cool weather made the corn market firm. Prices were also affected by the strength of wheat. After opening 1/4 to 3/4 to 1/2 higher, the market secured moderate further gains.

Oats rose with other grain and as a result of rains interfering with the harvest.

Stop-loss selling carried down provisions. Shorts were the only buyers.

The fact that the country offerings were next to nothing tended to keep the wheat market on the upgrade. The close was steady.

Urgent shipping demand helped later to bring about an additional rise. The market finished steady at 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 to 1 1/2 net advance.

MANDAMUS SUIT FILED TO-REINSTATE NURSES

Attorneys for the recently dismissed student nurses of Hempstead hospital filed suit in mandamus in common pleas court Wednesday morning to have them reinstated.

A temporary writ of mandamus was issued by the court commanding the director of public safety, John Linck, to restore the nurses to their positions or show good reasons by Friday morning at 9 o'clock why he should not do so.

Following is a copy of the petition.

State of Ohio, Scioto County, Court of Common Pleas.

The State of Ohio on the relation of Lora Davis, Fannie Boggs, Katherine Dameron, Emma Hertenstein, Olive Lemon, Olive Stout, Elizabeth Reitz, Stella Browning, Florence Cockran, Mahsa Osborn and Lyda Everman, plaintiffs.

vs.
John Linck, as Director of Public Safety of the City of Portsmouth, Ohio, defendant.

The relators say:
That they bring this suit jointly for the purpose of avoiding a multiplicity of suits, but that the interest and the facts are the same to each relator.

That the relators, and each of them, were regular employees in the service of the City of Portsmouth, Ohio, to-wit, in the capacity of nurses at the Hempstead hospital, which said hospital is managed and maintained by the City of Portsmouth, Ohio; that said relators are under the merit or civil service system as prescribed by law and are members of the classified service of the said city of Portsmouth, Ohio, and continuously performed their duties for a long time prior to the times hereinafter complained of.

That the defendant, John Linck, is the Director of Public Safety of the City of Portsmouth, Ohio, and is the successor of Joseph S. Lake, who resigned said office on or about July 15, 1915.

That on or about July 1, 1915, the said Joseph S. Lake acting in conspiracy and combination with Helen J. Lowe, caused to be served on each of said relators, by Helen J. Lowe, who is superintendent of said hospital, a notice of which the following is a copy:

"You are hereby notified of your suspension as an employee of Hempstead hospital, said suspension to be indefinitely, and to take effect July 1, 1915. Charges: Insubordination."

"(Signed) Helen J. Lowe, Superintendent of Hempstead Hospital."

No other notice of any kind was ever served upon either of the relators, nor were either of them ever furnished with any statements of fact upon which their alleged suspension was based, as required by law; that no notice of any kind was ever served upon the relators or either of them by either the said Joseph S. Lake as Director of Public Safety or the defendant.

And that the said notice which was served, a copy of which is heretofore set forth, was and is illegal, null and void, and of no force or effect whatever and was merely served upon the relators as a subterfuge, trick and device to secure their separation from the hospital without complying with the Civil Service laws, and the relators further say that said alleged suspension was without any evidence whatsoever to sustain the same and is absolutely null and void.

The relators and each of them are entitled to be reinstated and restored to the classified service and to their former positions as nurses in said Hempstead hospital, and it is the duty of the defendant to restore them as such.

The relators say that on July 10, 1915, they and each of them requested their reinstatement to their positions as nurses in said Hempstead hospital from the said Joseph S. Lake as Director of Public Safety who was at the time the Director of Public Safety of the city of Portsmouth, Ohio; and the said Joseph S. Lake refused to reinstate them. On July 15, 1915, said relators and each of them requested the defendant, who was then the Director of Public Safety of said city of Portsmouth, Ohio, to restore them as nurses in said Hempstead hospital; but the said defendant in furtherance of the illegal and unlawful conspiracy originated by the said Joseph S. Lake and Helen J. Lowe refused to reinstate said relators or either of them.

The relators and each of them are without any legal remedy and can only obtain redress for the wrongs inflicted by the defendant in a court of equity.

Wherefore, the relators pray that a writ of mandamus may issue against the defendant commanding him to reinstate the relators and each of them to their positions as nurses in said Hempstead hospital and restore them and each of them to the positions and employments from which they were illegally ousted by the defendant and his predecessor in office, and for such other and further relief, which may be just and equitable.

Director Linck expects to stand pat on his original decision, that the nurses must apply for admission to the hospital—not reinstatement—and will trust to City Solicitor Stanley McCall to fight the mandamus suit.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield's investigation of the Eastland disaster was scheduled to close temporarily today after the examination of George Uhler, supervising inspector general of the steamship service. It has not been announced when the inquiry will be resumed. It is not expected that a resumption of the sittings will take place until the federal grand jury has questioned all of the witnesses it has called to testify regarding the capsizing of the steamship.

WILSON AND AIDS TO FORCE MEXICAN CHIEFTAINS TO TERMS

Washington, Aug. 4.—Interest in tomorrow's conference on the Mexican problem between Secretary Lansing and diplomatic representatives of six Latin-American countries was heightened today as further details of the origin of the plan for joint co-operation in pacifying the southern republic came to light.

One of the latest developments is the fact that the decision to ask aid of the Central and South American republics in settling the Mexican difficulty was reached by President Wilson in June when his warning to the warring factions to settle their differences and restore peace went unheeded.

The diplomats were invited June 30 to participate in a conference while the appeal to the Mexican factions was made June 20.

Announcement was withheld, however, pending the sanctioning the plan by the Latin-American nations. It was considered likely today that the first step in the president's plan which will be submitted to the conferees by Secretary Lansing will be a last appeal to the factions to end the strife and arrange for a settled government.

If any factions fail to heed the warning the plan is said to include extension of moral and financial support to other factions. The plan is also said to include a restoration of a ban on war munitions to the revolting factions and a demand that railroad lines between Vera Cruz and Mexico City be kept open for the transportation of food supplies to the starving people of the capital.

Failure to do this might result in joint steps by the United States and the Latin-Americans to take physical control of the capital and the railroad by force and to hold them pending restoration of peace.

Great Britain, in her notes published today, refuses to accept the American contention that the Orders in council are illegal and justifies the British course as being wholly within international law.

Great Britain, it is declared, will continue to apply the orders in council, but with every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals.

It is denied that international law is violated by the blockading of neutral ports to cut off an enemy's commerce with foreign countries and Great Britain declines to allow the free passage of goods originating in Germany and territory under German control.

Great Britain's reply is embodied in two notes, one supplemental, and together with the correspondence over the American steamer Neches, seized by the British while bound from Rotterdam to the United States with goods of German origin also published today, totals seven thousand words.

The supplemental note is a reply to American earnest giving notice that the United States would not recognize the orders in council in lieu of international law and defends prize court proceedings. The United States is invited, however, to submit to arbitration any prize court decision it holds unjust.

In the case of the steamer Neches detained under the orders in council, the note justifies British stoppage of commerce from Germany and German controlled territory on the ground that Germany has violated international law in her war on British and neutral commerce.

An answer to British notes shortly will be forthcoming, data for which has been in the course of preparation for some time.

The German note regarding the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye probably will be given out late today for publication tomorrow morning.

Warsaw still holds out, and the hope that the Polish capital may yet be saved is growing stronger throughout Russia, France and Great Britain.

The German press notes the pause in the teutonic offensive and explains with the daily lengthening of communications, the problem of transport and reinforcement becomes more complicated, which accounts for the delay. At the same time the efficiency of the Russian rear guard blows is not ignored by the newspapers. The German emperor and his consort, heretofore reported on their way to Warsaw for a triumphant entry, have perforce to postpone the completion of their trip.

From Warsaw itself comes the optimistic prediction that if the city is able to endure a week longer—and the despatch was written four days ago—the evacuation of the city will be a success.

The Locomotive Wagon Works, and the Nelson Machine Shop, each occupying nearly half a block, were the largest structures to be swept away. The Jarochi and Lovell Wood Working Plants, two of the largest manufacturing plants in the city, were covered with a depth of six inches of water.

Four blocks on either side of the stream on Main street, the principal business thoroughfare of the city, were covered with a depth of six inches of water.

The Locomotive Wagon Works, and the Nelson Machine Shop, each occupying nearly half a block, were the largest structures to be swept away. The Jarochi and Lovell Wood Working Plants, two of the largest manufacturing plants in the city, were covered with a depth of six inches of water.

Early this morning gas mains all over the city were cut off, and telephone, street car and electric lighting service were paralyzed.

The charitable societies, the armory, hotels and hastily organized shelter clubs gave refuge to hundreds who saved their own lives and a few meagre belongings.

WILSON'S PROTEST IS READY

In all quarters it seems to be agreed that the controversy has reached the stage of an academic discussion, with some evidences of a trend toward ultimate submission to arbitration.

Great Britain, in her notes published today, refuses to accept the American contention that the Orders in council are illegal and justifies the British course as being wholly within international law.

Great Britain, it is declared, will continue to apply the orders in council, but with every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals.

It is denied that international law is violated by the blockading of neutral ports to cut off an enemy's commerce with foreign countries and Great Britain declines to allow the free passage of goods originating in Germany and territory under German control.

Great Britain's reply is embodied in two notes, one supplemental, and together with the correspondence over the American steamer Neches, seized by the British while bound from Rotterdam to the United States with goods of German origin also published today, totals seven thousand words.

The supplemental note is a reply to American earnest giving notice that the United States would not recognize the orders in council in lieu of international law and defends prize court proceedings. The United States is invited, however, to submit to arbitration any prize court decision it holds unjust.

In the case of the steamer Neches detained under the orders in council, the note justifies British stoppage of commerce from Germany and German controlled territory on the ground that Germany has violated international law in her war on British and neutral commerce.

An answer to British notes shortly will be forthcoming, data for which has been in the course of preparation for some time.

The German note regarding the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye probably will be given out late today for publication tomorrow morning.

Warsaw still holds out, and the hope that the Polish capital may yet be saved is growing stronger throughout Russia, France and Great Britain.

The German press notes the pause in the teutonic offensive and explains with the daily lengthening of communications, the problem of transport and reinforcement becomes more complicated, which accounts for the delay. At the same time the efficiency of the Russian rear guard blows is not ignored by the newspapers. The German emperor and his consort, heretofore reported on their way to Warsaw for a triumphant entry, have perforce to postpone the completion of their trip.

From Warsaw itself comes the optimistic prediction that if the city is able to endure a week longer—and the despatch was written four days ago—the evacuation of the city will be a success.

The Locomotive Wagon Works, and the Nelson Machine Shop, each occupying nearly half a block, were the largest structures to be swept away. The Jarochi and Lovell Wood Working Plants, two of the largest manufacturing plants in the city, were covered with a depth of six inches of water.

Early this morning gas mains all over the city were cut off, and telephone, street car and electric lighting service were paralyzed.

The charitable societies, the armory, hotels and hastily organized shelter clubs gave refuge to hundreds who saved their own lives and a few meagre belongings.

PROPOSE A STRINGENT ORDINANCE AGAINST JITNEYS

Suggest $5,000 Bond In Ordinance; Will Be Up To Council

Council will be asked at its evening session to pass a stringent ordinance regulating jitney buses and the jitney bus traffic in this city. Local No. 455, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, of this city, is said to be behind the movement, and copies of the proposed ordinance were mailed Wednesday morning to each of the nine councilmen of the city.

The provisions of the ordinance are as rigid as those governing the operation of any public utility, and would work a complete revolution of the jitney bus traffic in this city if enacted into a law.

Jitney bus owners are cognizant of the plans and are planning to make a bitter fight against the passage of the ordinance, it is stated. In the event of their failure, they say that they will insist upon certain regulations for the street railway company, among which are included repair of streets between tracks, stopping at near corners, and other things which they say they will spring at the right time.

The proposed ordinance provides for the licensing of each jitney bus owner, a fixed route and termini, and the deposit of a $5000 bond to insure passengers against probable injury. Violations of any part of the ordinance would be penalized by a fine of $100 and probable revocation of the owner's license.

A copy of the proposed ordinance was seen by a Times man at the office of one of the aldermen Wednesday morning, where it had been left by a member of the street railway workers' union.

In the first place, it provides that each jitney bus owner shall pay a license fee of $80 before he will be allowed to operate. To obtain this license he shall be required to file with the clerk of council a written application, giving his name, age, whether married or single, address, previous address, length of residence in Portsmouth, whether previously engaged in the jitney bus business and how long, the route or routes proposed and the termini, the days of the week and the hours of the day which he intends to operate, the kind of machine which he intends to operate with the maker's name and number and the fixed seating capacity of the machine. The applicant must be eighteen years old or older.

After receipt of the application the clerk of council shall refer it to the chief of police, who will make investigation concerning the character and general ability of the applicant and make his report. Council shall have the right to modify the proposed route, refuse to grant a license, or revoke a license after it has been granted.

If a license is granted the applicant shall be required to furnish a satisfactory bond for $5000 to protect passengers in case of injury. He shall also be required to wear a badge on his coat, and carry an identification which shall be furnished him when his license is granted. No other person other than the one to whom the license was issued shall be permitted to operate the car.

He shall also be required to place a sign in front of his car not less than 2 1/2 inches in height designating the route he covers, and in no instance shall the fare be over five cents. No passengers shall be permitted to stand on the running board of the car, sit otherwise than on the seats, nor will he be allowed to carry more than the fixed seating capacity of the machine. The licensee shall not be permitted to chew or smoke while driving, nor indulge in intoxicating liquor of any kind. He will also be required to come to a full stop when approaching a steam or street railway crossing.

President Edgar Gore of the local street railway workers' union, said the union originated the ordinance and the following members of the local union were on the committee to be present at the council meeting Wednesday night: Edgar Gore, Andy Workman, Harry Dixon, Fred Ashley, Virgil Cornutt, E. E. Hise, Truss Lynn, George Click, Joe Turner, Henry Cottle, John Skelton, Charles Luckett and Frank Bennett.

SUDDEN DEATH OVERTAKES A WOMAN WHO TRIED TO KILL HERSELF RECENTLY

Widowed by the suicide of her first husband, then wedded to an old admirer all within six weeks' time, fate decreed that the matrimonial bliss of Mrs. Anne Rohrbach-Hoskins should be short-lived, she meeting a sudden and rather mysterious death Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The tragic death occurred at the William Rodgers home, No. 120 Second street, where Mrs. Hoskins and her husband, Joe Hoskins, an employee of the Portsmouth Brewing & Ice Company began housekeeping only Tuesday.

About 10 o'clock Wednesday morning Mrs. Hoskins was seized with a violent coughing spell. Theresa Taylor, a 14 year old neighbor girl, whom she had engaged to assist her in fitting up her home, hurried to the brewery and summoned Mr. Hoskins. By this time Mrs. Hoskins was bleeding from the mouth and nose. He sent in a hurry call for Dr. O. R. Mickelthwait, physician for the Owls, of which Joe is a member, but she expired before he could reach the home.

Dr. Walter Daehler, the county coroner, was notified and the made an examination of the body and questioned the witnesses. While it was plainly evident that the woman had suffered hemorrhages, he reserved his verdict as to the immediate cause of death. The woman, he believed, from what he learned, was a sufferer from melancholia. A few weeks ago Mrs. Hoskins was found in a semi-comatose state at the home of George W. Gillen, of Second and Madison streets, where she was employed as a domestic. She steadfastly refused to talk to any one even her lover, Hoskins, and City Physician Dr. Charles Wendelken, who attended her, gave it as his opinion that she had swallowed some slow poison with suicidal intent. The woman recovered after lingering for about forty-eight hours and denied having taken any poison. At the time she was known to have been despondent because Hoskins insisted on postponing their marriage even though she had just shortly before received a letter from a married daughter telling of the suicide of her husband, Rudolph Rohrbach, by shooting himself at his home in Wheeling, W. Va. She had been separated from him for seven or eight years. Following her arrest for alleged living in adultery with Hoskins at New Boston, the woman became a domestic in the family of the late Sheriff John W. Gillen, while serving her sentence at the county jail. Later she entered the employ of the sheriff's aged parents, and was a dutiful and industrious servant, though peculiar and given to spells of melancholy. Though she gave her age as 39 years at the time of her marriage to Hoskins on July 17th, she was believed to be considerably older.

Gilliland Pays His Respects To Bannon And Hard; Tells Of "Cats And Dogs" Harmony

Attorney N. B. Gilliland, one of the five candidates for nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket at the primary next Tuesday delivered an address at the corner of Front and Sinton streets Tuesday evening. In the course of his address he took occasion to express his opinion of two local political leaders, Messrs. Charles E. Hard and Henry T. Bannon. The following is a part of his address as quoted by the Morning Star, a Republican organ:

"City council may pass laws to give John Book a street. They may pass laws to give the N. & W. railway two or three streets. They have you know, if you remember the Kendall avenue viaduct. Do you know who is back of a certain candidate? Do you know who the attorney is who fights for another? These are two men who I will give their initials, one is Henry T. Bannon and the other Charles E. Hard. Each is standing behind a candidate. Henry Bannon does not care a darn for you or for me. He is looking after the interests of the N. & W. railroad and the C. & O. N. railway. He wants someone in there. He could not get Nate Gilliland. No one rules me, even my wife—when I am away from home."

"Are you going to vote for the corporations that will crush the life out of you, or are you going to vote for the common people? You have voted for the corporations for the past twenty-five years. You may say that Nate Gilliland is fighting corporations again, and I am. I am fighting for the people and then the corporations can come afterward. "Mr. Bannon's political aspirations has long been known. He desired to get the city under his hands. I understand that even Jobbie Phillips—Jobbie, are you in the crowd? If you are, I do not mean any harm to you—will again be in the water works. He has been in the water works for several years. He has had experience. Vote for the man that stands for the party and not for the corporations."

"Mr. Hard, have you ever heard of him before? I believe that he held the postoffice job for several years. Then he was slated for a state job. He did not get the support of Mr. Bannon. Don't you see where this will lead. The city will come under their control, then the county, then the district. Don't you see that they will control our congressmen? We had harmony last year, but now we are fighting like cats and dogs."

"Here they are fighting like cats and dogs. The same jobs have been promised to half a dozen different persons. There is a man whose name I will not mention that drives a laundry wagon, that has been promised the job of chief of police. I understand that the same job has been promised to half a dozen. I have $50 in the bank which I will give to anyone that can prove that I have offered a position to anyone. I don't want the office hampered."

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. Resch, 1306 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, O. Office Phone 68.

Dear Miss Wise—Please settle an argument for me. I say the person sending in the name of one of these six beautiful girls of Ohio gets $25.00. Now am I right? My friend says you don't get anything. I hope I am right. When does the contest close? Do you know anyone who will buy hair for switches. I have so much I want to sell.

DAISY.

"The Beautiful Girl Contest" will close next week. The ones who nominated the six girls who will be chosen from the fifty selected from several hundred photographs taken some time ago, will receive $25.00. The six receiving the most votes will take the trip to the Pacific coast. You will be able to see these fifty beautiful girls at the Columbia theatre this week, and you should go and cast your vote. Any of the hair dressers in the city will buy the hair you have for switches.

Dear Dolly—I am 21 years of age, and am engaged to a fellow 23 years of age. He has always been coming on, Tuesdays and Thursdays till here lately, and he comes on Monday and Wednesdays. I never paid any attention until the other night I saw him with another girl. My girl friends said he had been going with her for sometime. Please advise me what to do. Send back the engagement ring!

BROKEN HEARTED.

There is only one thing to do. Talk it over with the young man to whom you are engaged. If he is caring for another girl, give him back the engagement ring. It is better to know all these things before than after marriage.

Miss Wise—Can you tell me how to remove spots from furniture. I am a constant reader of the Times and will appreciate an answer.

GALLIA STREET.

Make a dressing of one part of spirits of turpentine and three parts of linseed oil, and shake thoroughly before using. Rub on briskly to remove spots, and rub the wood dry with a piece of clean flannel.

Dear Miss Wise—Some time ago a boy said something to me that was very disrespectful, about a girl friend of mine. Since that time he has moved away and has written to me asking me to correspond with him. What shall I do?

E. O.

A boy who will say a disrespectful thing about a girl is usually not one that is worth having as a friend.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a young man of 22. I met the "sweetest girl in the world" about a year ago, and I love her dearly. I have asked her to marry me, but she only laughs and gives me no answer. I really think that she cares for me. What can I do in order to receive a more decided answer?

T. A. G.

Perhaps the girl thinks she is too young to be engaged to be married. Perhaps you have not proposed with seriousness. If you proposed in a flippant manner you may expect flippant answers.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a young girl of 17 and am in love with a young man about three years my senior. He is in the bank, but has been moved from here to a neighboring town. He has been back to see me many times, but does not seem to take the same interest in me as he used to, as I have been keeping company with another young man in this city. What should I do, as he objects to this young man coming to see me so often?

DORIS.

The young man has no right to object to your receiving attentions from the other boy. Do not pay any attention to his objections. Have as many boy friends as you wish. Until he asks you to marry him and you accept his proposal he has no right to dictate to you, as to your men friends.

Dear Miss Wise—Is vaseline good for the hair?

BETTY.

Yes. Castor oil is also said to be very good. It should be rubbed into the scalp thoroughly the night before you intend washing it.

Dear Miss Wise—What must you say when a boy wants to kiss you?

HELEEN.

Say "No." Never allow such a liberty.

Argyle Salad

Use one can apricots, twelve chopped marshmallows, half cup chopped nut meats, some lettuce leaves, yolks of four eggs, four tablespoonsful vinegar, one tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful dry mustard, one teaspoonful butter, few grains of red pepper, one cupful of whipped cream.

Kaps Men Hold Rousing Rally; McCormick Flopper Welcomed, 1,334 Pledges Are Reported

An enthusiastic meeting of Kaps supporters was held Tuesday afternoon at Kaps headquarters above the Atlas store, both rooms being filled with the workers. The meeting originally was intended to be for workers only, but when the Kaps leaders saw the crowd speeches were arranged.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the flop of Charles Hans from the McCormick to the Kaps forces. Hans was liberally applauded as he entered the room, there being more rejoicing over his return to the fold than over the ninety and nine that were loyal to the Kaps candidacy from the beginning. Hans later was forced to make a short speech, which was also loudly cheered.

President E. K. S. Clinkenbeard opened the informal meeting with a talk that teemed with encouragement for the Kaps forces. He stated that during the past week there had been a steady swing of sentiment all over the city to Kaps especially since the publication of the "Why Did You Experiment?" advertisement of the McCormick publicity committee, which he said was being resented by fair-minded Republicans of Portsmouth as an undeserved rebuke of their former representatives in municipal offices.

President Clinkenbeard laid great stress upon the fact that former Mayor F. N. Tynes had publicly proclaimed himself a Kaps supporter, and that Charles Hans, one of the original McCormick boosters, was now in the Kaps camp. As he was talking, Hans was ushered into the room by a group of Kaps workers and was given a great reception.

President Clinkenbeard said that their action was indicative of the change that is going on all over the city.

Emphasis was laid on the fact that since the last meeting, 98 additional pledges for the Kaps candidacy had been secured, with more to hear from. Before the meeting was over the total number of pledges was increased to 1,334, it was announced.

George W. Sheppard, the man who fired the broadside at the Kaps meeting last week, was then introduced by President Clinkenbeard. Mr. Sheppard, at the outset, stated that the meeting was called for work, and not for speech-making, but that he would consent to make a short talk before getting down to real business.

The qualifications of Kaps as a contractor, business man, and public official were emphasized by the speaker, who added that any public work that would be undertaken by the city under his administration would be rightly supervised, leaving no doubt of the durability of the work. He denied that to be a mayor of any city, a man had to be lawyer or a college graduate; good, hard, common sense and integrity were the main qualifications, he said. He repeated his statement of last week that the city solicitor was elected to look after the legal department of the city.

The statement in an Osborn advertisement of a few days ago which represented Judge Osborn as the best candidate before the Republican voters was also disputed by Mr. Sheppard, who added that Mr. Kaps' qualifications entitled him to as much, if not more, consideration at the hands of the voters.

Mr. Sheppard closed with a word of praise to the colored voters present, complimenting them for their interest in the Kaps candidacy. He said that no man in Portsmouth had done more to improve conditions in the north end of the city than Bert Kaps, who was known and loved by almost every man, woman and child in that section.

Charles Sealey, an Earlstown Kaps leader and an employee at the railroad shops, was next called upon, but his modesty prevented him from making a long talk. He said that the sentiment in his section of the city was overwhelmingly in favor of Kaps, and that the men in the shops were favorable to his candidacy. Several of the Democrats, he said, had assured him, that while they could do nothing for Kaps at the primary election, they would support him loyally next November.

His reasons for changing from a McCormick to a Kaps supporter were then outlined by Charles Hans, former police sergeant under the Tynes administration: "I was one of the men who circulated the first petitions asking Fred Tynes to run, and was present when they were presented to him. I tried my best to get him to run, and when he said he wouldn't, I said I was through."

"About a week later McCormick came to me with a petition which he asked me to sign. I looked at it and saw that he was a candidate for mayor. I signed it, and he said: 'Take it out and see what you can do with it.' I suppose I got about six or seven signatures."

"About that time McCormick looked like the strongest candidate. But that advertisement last week has made things look different. I couldn't swallow it, and that is why I am here tonight."

William S. Sellards was called upon for a short talk, but he managed to get out of the room before he could be located.

In closing the open meeting President Clinkenbeard thanked the twenty-seven loyal Kaps men from the East End who were present for their attendance, in spite of a Republican rally in their own district. He said it was such loyalty that was going to return Kaps the winner next Tuesday.

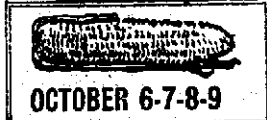

Announcements were made of two Kaps meetings this week, one in the north end Wednesday evening, and a big downtown meeting Friday evening. The best speakers among the Kaps forces will make speeches at these meetings.

N. & W. DEPOT AT KINGSTON ROBBED

The N. & W. passenger and freight depot at Kingston was entered and robbed again Tuesday night for the second time in the past two months.

The robbers gained entrance by removing a window sash on the east side of the building. They removed an iron box from the old safe that was blown up the last time the place was visited by "reggmen" but found it empty. The company's large new safe was not disturbed. The robbers next went into the freight house and tearing off the lids of several boxes took a quantity of merchandise.

Andy Leslie, the company's newly appointed special officer here, will leave for Kingston Wednesday afternoon to begin an investigation.

LANDMARK IS TORN DOWN

Another old landmark gave way to the march of progress when the Home Service Company razed the dwelling on the Peebles place, adjoining the Garfield school at Gallia pike and Mabert road.

The house was built of logs a century ago but in recent years had been weatherboarded. The rafters were hewn out of logs and fastened with wooden pins. The joists were of good yellow poplar hewn out of logs 3x12 inches. The house proper was of logs 8x20 inches and 25 feet in length. The upper floor was pinned to the rafters instead of nailed.

The property was the home of Gug Weber, the N. & W. wrecking foreman, Charles Widdig and different well known citizens for many years. The material has been stored at the Kinney Tract, corner Sixteenth and Waller streets.

PITCHER IS ENJOINED

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 4.—Sanford Burk, pitcher for the Pittsburgh Federal league baseball club, was today temporarily restrained from playing with the club, and the club was restrained from employing Burk through injunctions granted to representatives of the American Association Baseball Club of Indianapolis, by Judge Ambrose B. Reed in the common pleas court. Judge Reed named August 6 as the time when he would hear arguments on the motion to make the injunction permanent. Burk joined the Pittsburgh Federals recently when that team passed through Columbus, Ohio.

Local Firm Must Not Use Patent

Cincinnati, O., August 4.—A perpetual injunction, was issued by Judge Hollister yesterday, restraining the Mitchell Manufacturing Company, of Portsmouth, Ohio, its agents and employees, from directly or indirectly making, using, or selling re-enforcing strips for button ties on buttoned shoes after the patent owned by the plaintiff, the Wright Manufacturing Company of Lawrence, Mass. The court held that the defendant had infringed upon the patent. As the plaintiff waived all claims for profits, damages and costs, no decree covering these features was made.

Charles M. Mitchell, of the Mitchell Manufacturing company, stated Wednesday that the patent which they were enjoined from using was a button fly-stay placed under buttonholes to reinforce them, and that both the local firm and the Lawrence firm were using them when the latter firm secured the patent. Mr. Mitchell stated that inasmuch as the stay did not prove altogether satisfactory to the local firm, and that laces were replacing buttons, they decided not to contest the suit.

REV. A. R. CONNELL TO LEAVE BIGELOW CHURCH

Friends of Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Connell and family will regret to learn that Rev. Connell will not come back to Bigelow church next year. His successor will be named, and he will be sent to a new charge at the meeting of the Ohio Conference of Methodist Episcopal churches to be held September 3 in the Central Methodist church, Columbus.

The rumor has been afloat for some time that Mr. Connell would not be with Bigelow next year, and when he was asked concerning it by The Times this morning, he promptly confirmed the report, saying his church knew he would not be their pastor after this year, and that a committee is now at work looking over the available ministers to secure his successor.

Rev. Mr. Connell came here a year ago, succeeding the Rev. Alfred F. Hughes, who was sent to Columbus. During their brief stay in the city he and his family have made many friends, who will regret their departure.

"Lud" Hamilton, who has been connected with the theatrical business in Portsmouth in former years and of late has been managing Carnden park near Huntington, will be the new manager of the Sun. He succeeds Manager Fitzhugh Lee, who so successfully held the job for a number of years and resigned to take another position.

LOYALTY DAY TOMORROW IS AN ASSURED FACT

MEETING OF COMMITTEE AT TIMES OFFICE TONIGHT, HAVE YOU BEEN TAGGED?

Don't make any mistake about it, "Loyalty Day" tomorrow afternoon, at Millbrook Park, is going to be one magnificent success. It is going to be the day when the good, progressive fans of the Portsmouth City will show the entire universe, (if that isn't taking in too much territory) that they are loyal to the cause—that there is nothing half-hearted or wily-wolly about their loyalty.

Sufficient tickets or tags have now been disposed of to insure the partial success of the day. But, friends and fellow citizens, there will be more tickets sold before the time comes for the arbitrator to call "Play Ball!" There are hundreds of fans who have not been solicited as yet, but the various committees are still wide awake and working like wheel horses to tag every person in the city. And they will get you, too, if you don't watch out.

The liberal action of the manufacturers of the city, is commended on every hand. The manufacturers know that baseball is a good thing for the city, and when the question was put up to them to purchase tickets they responded even more liberally than the committee had hoped. Their action put a whole lot of "pop" into the various committees, and the result will be felt in the attendance tomorrow when Portsmouth crosses bats with Haysville before a memorable crowd.

Not only have the manufacturers done their part nobly, but the merchants, the lawyers, the doctors, the druggists, the butchers, the grocers and the candle-stick maker—yes, the laborers—everybody, it seems, have stepped nobly to the front and made their investment of at least a dollar. The retail stores will close, the barber shops will cut out work, the druggist will turn the key and the building and loan associations will knock off work in order to enjoy the game. The band is going to play inspiring airs—in fact, friends, Thursday is going to be a day that will make history.

Let it be said right here that there is no disposition on the part of any single member of the committee to mislead anyone as to the price of admission. The committee hopes to see every fan wearing a loyalty tag. They cost $1.00 each and are good for loyalty day only. However, the regular prices of admission will prevail and if you haven't the necessary dollar with which to purchase a loyalty tag, then you will be just as welcome by paying your 25 cents—first gate admission. Forty cents will admit you to the grand stand and 50 cents will give you a reserved seat. The regular price of admission will also prevail so far as the ladies and children are concerned.

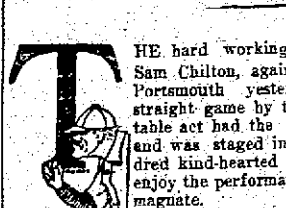

So if you haven't enough of the magazine with which to buy a tag come to the game anyway—you will be as welcome as the flowers in May.

It's one chance, fans, of showing your loyalty to Manager Spencer and his bunch of hard toiling athletes. Your presence is needed to round out the day, for with the band and a whole of a crowd the old spirit will be revived, and it will seem like old times. If you have been absenting yourself from the park, right now (tomorrow) is a chance for you to display that true blue spirit that has made Portsmouth the backbone of the Ohio State League.

Remember, the game will not be started until 3:30. This will afford practically everybody a chance to see the big doings and cut in on the routing.

And now, a final word to the members of the committee who have been selling tickets. Let every single one of them report at The Times office tonight (Wednesday) not one minute later than 7:45. There will be a settlement to make and every member must be present without fail.

Crippled "Champs" Beaten By The Leading Senators; Lack Of Hits The Main Cause

THE hard working athletes employed by President Sam Chilton, again imposed upon the visitors from Portsmouth yesterday when they took the third straight game by the score of 6 to 4. This inhospitable act had the official sanction of Mr. Chilton and was staged in plain sight of a couple of hundred kind-hearted cash customers who seemed to enjoy the performance as much as did our local magnate.

The victory was gained without bloodshed, no one being spiked, run over or slain on the field of battle. The Cobs were in bad shape, however, as Caton was unable to play and Bush was kept out of the game by a badly wrenched back. Despite the handicaps, Portsmouth died hard and made the locals extend themselves to win.

Leyne pitched a wonderful game, his curves breaking, scintillating and speeding as they never broke, scintillated or speeded before. During the afternoon he yielded but four safeties and struck out nine batters. He wobbled a trifle in the third and fourth when he passed three men, but after those innings his work could not be improved upon. Ferguson was nicked for nine bingles and was saved from a worse fate by brilliant fielding on the part of his playmates.

There were few dull moments in the machine. Heavy hitting, brilliant fielding and speedy base running occurred with amazing regularity, keeping the moters in a constant state of excitement. Nutter was the fielding hero of the day. He had seven putouts in center field, which is regarded as a league record. Twice he ran back and pulled down long line drives that had extra base tags on them. Wat Powell also distinguished himself when he ran into short center and caught Johnson's first short. Dillhoefer did the best work for the enemy, stopping everything that came his way.

Mr. Corbin, the well-known strategist, returned to our midst after a short visit with the folks at Chillicothe and distinguished himself by busting one over the fence for a homer in the fourth without changing his bat. He got a single in the fifth and drew a pass on his last appearance at the plate. Shorman and Dills also got circuit smashes, which were responsible for the four runs scored by their side.

Our heroes scored their first run in the opening stanza. Ferguson fumbled Nutter's bunt and Beers sent the speedy center fielder to third with a single. Powell's long sacrifice fly scored Nutter. Corbin skied to Hancock and Beers was thrown out at third on the play. Nutter ruined Portsmouth's chances to score in their half of the first when he ran back and caught Dills' line drive near the fence. Dillhoefer and Shorman were easy victims.

Wat Powell robbed Johnson of a sure hit in the second when he ran in to Nutter's territory and pulled down a line drive that looked like a double. It was one of the prettiest catches seen on the local diamond this year.

Inquire About Markets

The city is in receipt of an inquiry from Mayor E. Schen, of Huntington, W. Va., relative to the local system of conducting public markets. Huntington is about to open its first market house.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 4.

Troutman felt asleep at the switch in the fifth. When Dills and McHenry were fumbling Rodson's grounder he started for third and came back when the ball was recovered. Dillhoefer muffed the throw from Dills, but Troutman struck around, although the ball went out to center field. His somnolent performance was not fatal, however, as he scored on Nutter's double.

A brace of doubles gave Charleston a run they didn't need in the eighth and a brilliant play by Dillhoefer prevented further scoring. The score:

A FEW PICKUPS AND GROUNDERS

Dillhoefer made a great stop of Curtis' grounder in the fourth. Daubert started from second when the ball was hit and the visitor's shortstop grabbed the ball when it passed through Jake's legs, getting his man at first with a quick throw.

Umpire Colgate was shot in the back in the sixth inning when he aided Shorman in steal second. Biddy Beers' throw was perfect, but his legs got within range and the ball bounded from his shoulder.

Corbin pulled a coup at first—what-ever that is—in the sixth. After he drew a pass, he kept on going and reached second before Johnson realized ed that he held the ball in his hand.

Troutman felt asleep at the switch in the fifth. When Dills and McHenry were fumbling Rodson's grounder he started for third and came back when the ball was recovered. Dillhoefer muffed the throw from Dills, but Troutman struck around, although the ball went out to center field. His somnolent performance was not fatal, however, as he scored on Nutter's double.

WATCH FOR THIS BUNCH

A street committee consisting of St. Francis, Fred Assman, Edward Luck, Dan Thomas, Ro. McElhenny and Arthur Hahn has been appointed to thoroughly canvass Chillicothe street Thursday morning. It will be the sworn duty of this committee to buttonhole every fan who is not wearing a loyalty tag. If you don't want to be asked to purchase, wise up and buy a tag in the meantime.

Will Meet Tonight

The various members of the "Loyalty Committee" are hereby notified that it is imperative that they meet at The Times office this evening at 7:45 o'clock when they will be expected to make their report. Let every member be present on time as the report must be completed tonight.

BIDDY'S TEAM GOING SOME

Biddy Beers is driving his team at top speed. The Senators now have a good lead in the second half and if they do not crack will be hard to dislodge. They have taken three straight from the locals, the result being the Spencers are far down in the race. All of which means the local fans should rally with a whoop to the team that is fighting under the colors of Portsmouth. They will be given one grand chance tomorrow, "Loyalty Day," when the Spencers return from Charleston to battle with Mayaville. As one of the 2,500 at the park. Come out with all sorts of noise making devices and make the day one long to be remembered.

Mr. Maffey Is Here

Frank Maffey, of Cincinnati, came up to Portsmouth from Cincinnati Sunday to spend several days at the home of his son, Dr. H. A. Maffey, of Fourth and Gay streets. The elder Maffey is interested in the Royal motion picture theatre near the corner of Seventh and Vine streets in Cincinnati. If a suitable place can be secured, the Maffey family will camp for several days near the city.

NEW YORK GIRL IS A FIGHT MANAGER: MERCY! WHAT WILL THEY BE UP TO NEXT?

Most everyone has now agreed that while the sport shirt in use by some young men in hot weather may be a cool garment, it is a fearfully silly looking thing. Hot weather must be endured, however, and here are a few other notions that might help.

Miss Lorella Boag of New York is a fight manager. She discusses weight and gloves with the referee, swings a towel between rounds and coaches her fighter from the ring-side all through the fight. Clara Marshall, the boy she manages, is her brother.

Miss Boag, who declares there is nothing brutal about the game, is as well informed on the game as any veteran ring-side. Her brother declares that his wins and draws are largely attributable to his sister's advice from the ring-side.

Young women who may have felt a little diffident or shy about it before will be able to become fight managers and promoters without any complications. Now that they have seen one young woman's success they will take heart. The day approaches, perhaps, when the sporting editor will not be surprised to see young lady lightweights come in to cover belts and issue challenges. There are plenty of chances for them yet in the field of sport. And someday cowardly male heavyweights will be drawing the feminine line.

Billy Sunday Wanted To Become Twirler

Nearly ever professional baseball player aspires to be a pitcher at some time in his career, and Billy Sunday, now playing in the Evangelist league, but formerly with the Chicago, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh clubs of the National League, is no exception. It was just a quarter of a century ago, on July 16, 1890, toward the end of his baseball career, that Billy appeared in the role of a slick artist. It was at a game between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, in the latter city, that the future evangelist got his one try-out in the twirler's box.

Chance to Demonstrate. Although he had won his spurs in the outfield, Billy had long nourished in the innermost recesses of his brain the idea that he could show the pitchers a thing or two in the art of pushing the pellet across the plate. He was a veteran when he finally got a chance to demonstrate. Two pitchers had been knocked out of the box, and the game was apparently lost, when Billy was told to go in and display his pitching prowess. It was a chance he long had sought and he was tickled most to death.

Billy Was Confident. In smiling confidence the future evangelist faced the first man up, who happened to be the pitcher of the opposing club. The smile didn't last, however, for Billy discovered that the plate was an elusive thing, and in his efforts to find it he sent over four balls in succession. With a man on first, Billy decided it was time to settle down and do some pitching, and he faced the task with grim determination. This time he found the plate, and the ball ter found the ball for a three-bagger. The next man to attempt to solve the puzzle of Billy's delivery was content with a two-bagger. The next batter was unable to dodge quick enough and the ball hit him on the chest. Before the inning was over four runs had been scored from Billy's delivery, and he was retired. Billy decided that pitching wasn't so easy as it looked, and after that one fatal inning he abandoned his ambition to shine in the box.

How The Committee Secured The Band

Thanks to the foresight and keen business acumen of Arthur Haman the five city band will be put in full force for Loyalty Day. The fans of this city a couple of years ago raised a nice sum of money to defray the expenses of the River City band on a tour to Huntington. The sum of $57.70 was left after all expenses were paid. This money was turned over to Mr. Haman and it was placed in his building association. With the interest, the fund now amounts to $225.00, and makes it possible for the committee to secure the band.

Director George Kahn stated that the band would be out in its finest finery, with horns brightly polished and that lively, catchy, inspiring selections would be recited off. The band will assemble at Tracy Park at 1:30 o'clock, and from there march to Government

Square where several selections will be rendered. From there the band will march to the Washington hotel where the players, band and fans will board a string of cars and the invigorating ride to Millbrook will begin. Fans having automobiles are kindly invited to have their machines at the Washington hotel at 2 o'clock and join in the parade to the park.

Eagles Clinch Pennant

By winning yesterday's game from the Victors their nearest rivals the Eagles clinched the pennant in the Junior League. The Eagles have proved themselves a fast little team and had easy work winning the pennant. Their success was due largely to the efficient management of Frank Davis who knows the game from every angle. The fine pitching of Wallace also contributed largely to the team's success. This aggregation has only lost one game thus far, this game being lost to the Victors. Tuesday's game also proved easy for the Eagles, as they defeated Bryant hard, getting thirteen hits off him. Wallace was never in danger as the runs scored off him came mostly from bases on balls. Bryant for the Victors and Bernthold for the Eagles secured two hits. The game was called at the end of the seventh on account of rain. The score by innings:

Pennant Day Thursday

Thursday is Pennant Day in the Junior League. The All Stars, champions of last season, will receive their red and white pennant at that time. Good fast games are scheduled for Thursday as follows: First game, Bigelow vs. Yankees, batteries: Shetters and Smith; Dever and Gehres. At the close of this game the All Stars will be presented with their pennant, after which they will go on to the diamond for the second game of the afternoon, playing against the strong Cardinal team. The batteries for this game will be Jeffords and Collis; Worthington and Selsor. The pennant will be presented by Mr. G. W. Mendenhall, prominent Boy Scout worker. The All Stars who won last year's pennant, also have a nice lead in the

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Dr. William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Principles of Medicine" (1902), on page 210: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose lungs elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. In the granulations produced and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become incorporated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied. Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis and the success of Eckman's Alternative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due early to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated. Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis has shown of which appear to have yielded completely to it justifies our belief that it is a true and useful remedy. Some other treatment already in use is succeeding. It contains no opiates, narcotics, habit-forming drugs, or any more that reputable physicians give prominence with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which it HAS HELPED. Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can send direct. Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

MAY SUBMIT SEWER BOND ISSUE TO VOTE

The board of control has suggested to City Engineer George S. Wilhoit that he so arrange the work of his department that at the earliest time possible it may begin preliminary work and take up the matter of preparing detailed plans covering the proper sewerage of the northern and eastern sections of the city working into Lawson's Run. After the engineer's plans are completed they will be submitted to the state board of health for approval. If these plans are prepared during the autumn and winter months it will be possible to submit to the voters of the city the matter of a bond issue to provide the necessary funds for carrying out the entire system or contract for so much of the installation each year that may come within the limit of funds available under the law.

MANY RUMORS AFLOAT ABOUT "HIGH YALLER"

The police officials continue to receive periodical tips concerning the whereabouts of Henry Glenn, alias "High Yaller," the alleged gun-man in the Bauson murder case, but when run down they invariably fizzle out. One of the latest reports was that "High Yaller" has been holding forth in an N. & W. camp in the mountains of West Virginia, moving about in perfect freedom and disregarding the advice of his friends, who urged him to either surrender or leave the country. He is said to have replied that he had not done anything to run away for, that it was "Jungle Shine" who murdered Detective James A. Bauson, and if they ever caught him they would "simply have me that's all." "High Yaller" is reported operating a crap game and "bootlegging" joint. He is also reported to have been seen at Winchester, Ky., lately.

HENRY T. BANNON ADDRESSES AN ENTHUSIASTIC M'CORMICK MEETING

Over one hundred members of the Fourth Ward McCormick club assembled at the Distel hall on Gallia, at the head of Lawson street, Tuesday evening to hear addresses delivered by Hon. H. T. Bannon, Charles McCormick, the candidate for nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket, and Roy McElhanev.

Mr. Bannon delivered the principal address of the evening and was heartily applauded, while Mr. McCormick, called upon for a short talk, received a warm ovation. Mr. McCormick stated:

"I have been out riding rail-road engines all day and I am pretty tired. Speaking of harmony, I have heard a great deal of this harmony stuff here lately, but I want to say I am for the man who is nominated on the Republican ticket, whoever he may be. I say this, first, because I expect to be nominated, and second because I am a Republican. All of you men here are acquainted with what I did before I became a candidate. I circulated petitions for Fred N. Tynes and he said then that he was for me and of course I had to swallow it. I don't think he ever has been for me. We can go out and beat them at the polls and make them like it."

Roy McElhanev confined his remarks to an expression of confidence that Mr. McCormick would be elected. Carl N. Hansen, who was called on for a few brief words, declined to talk, asking that he be excused.

Karl Fischbach, chairman of the Fourth Ward Republican club, acted as chairman of the meeting, and expressed his confidence in Mr. McCormick's election at the primary next Tuesday. On behalf of members of the Fourth Ward Club, he pledged their support to Mr. McCormick at the primaries and to the nominee at election.

In his address Mr. Bannon replied to statements made by Attorney George W. Sheppard last Friday night at a meeting of the Kaps supporters. He announced the advocacy of a municipal police judge for Portsmouth. His address in full follows:

Says Sheppard Is Some Smoucher

There was a gathering of the spirits from the other political world, last Friday night. George Sheppard made a speech to them. I suppose he was there to revive the spirits. As a creator of enthusiasm among political ghosts, George takes the cake. Before you can be political ghost, you know, you must be a dead one and before you can be a dead one you must be a lame duck. And this was a great gathering of ghosts, lame ducks and dead ones. George made a great speech. It was what I call a smoucher. Do you know what a smoucher is? I'll bet you don't know. Well, a smoucher is a loud buzz—George is some buzzer.

First George announced the unalterable opposition of the Kaps crowd to Judge Osborn. A careful reading of George's remarks, as reported in that household necessity, known as The Portsmouth Times, develops the reasons why the Kaps crowd is opposed to Judge Osborn. It is because he knows too much about the different functions of City Government. The friends of McCormick cannot agree with George. We have no quarrel with Judge Osborn. We have faith in his integrity and his ability. We can support him vigorously if nominated, but we believe that, in view of the past, Portsmouth should have a mayor who, in the prime of life, is facing a bright future and who can and will enhance efficiency and economy in the City Government. Such a man is Charles McCormick.

But I don't think the reason assigned by George is his real reason. I think he is guilty of suppression. What Charlie Hard would call disingenuous. Did you get that? His real reason reminds me of the story of a darky who took a short cut across a graveyard one night. This was no political graveyard—it was a real graveyard. Some of his friends robed themselves in white and laid in wait for him. As he came by them, they suddenly emerged from behind a mound and the darky took to his heels. The ghosts took after him and he looked over his shoulder and saw them coming. This added fresh terror to his already frightened mind and the way he ran would have put Salvador to shame. On the way he kicked up a rabbit which ran down the path ahead of him as only a rabbit can. But the rabbit was greatly in the darky's way, so finally he kicked the rabbit to one side and said, "Mr. Rabbit get out of the way. If you can't run let some one run who kin run."

The Kaps crowd is against the Judge because he wouldn't get out of the way for them and is running so fast they can't even kick him out of the way. Next George announced that he favored for mayor a man who had the hoof and mouth disease. That leads me to believe that George is really for Frick. I am unable to classify cattle diseases, but our present mayor is at least sadly afflicted with the pen and mouth disease.

Refers To "Them Charges"

Then, according to the newspaper reports, George waved a political advertisement at the Kaps cohorts, became vehement and bitterly denounced the advertisement. And what did he say? He is quoted by the press as saying: "I don't want to go out and face a Democratic candidate with such charges as these to be thrown in my face. I wouldn't either. Let us give the people an efficient, business-like administration and then we won't have to face charges. The Republican party is not a refuge behind which incompetency may hide itself."

What we desire to make clear is that our interest in this contest is to secure a better administration of our City Government. This is to the interest of every citizen, rich and poor alike. We all make mistakes. Plenty of them. Perfection cannot be attained by any individual or by any party. Even in our schools seventy per cent of perfect scores promotion. The Republican party can and does give this country, this state, this county and this city a better government than the Democratic party. Of course we make mistakes. But the other fellows make more. It is our duty as Republicans to avoid all the mistakes we can. It is better that the errors of the past be pointed out by Republicans to Republicans instead of by Democrats to Republicans. No man will wish for or work harder for the success of the Republican party than we will. To refuse to observe our mistakes is political suicide. To direct attention to them and then avoid them in the future is the surest way to secure victory in November.

George said he was proud that he was a member of the gang. Well, the gang never reciprocated because the only time the gang is not for George is when he is running for office and that is most of the time. Now, where is the responsibility for the condition of our municipal affairs? It is not upon the Republican party. The fault lies at the door of those who used the party for selfish ends. The individual was advanced by favor only and not as a result of his ability and efficiency. Had the individual members of the Republican party felt that their political future depended upon the value of the service rendered by them to the public, they would have taken pride in these municipal improvements, but they felt, and had reason to feel, that ability, efficiency and economy would count for naught and that the better they did their work the sooner the boss would kick them out. But a new era is dawning, an era when merit shall prevail and when the door of equal opportunity for all shall again be opened wide in the Republican party.

Sore About George Ditty

Then Sheppard complained because Scioto county is at last getting its share of the state patronage. He is sore because George Ditty landed. That doesn't disturb our organization. We will get more places for our friends in one year than the old gang got in its entire history. I can see the dawn of better days for Portsmouth. The future carries with it much of promise. We are opposed to Kaps because he is surrounded by a ring of petty politicians, who will use the revenues of this city for selfish purposes and who will continue waste and inefficiency in the City government. They say Kaps should be elected mayor because he is a wonderful contractor and knows the difference between sand and gravel. If he is a good contractor, his abilities should be reserved by the people for the purpose of constructing public work in which we can all take pride. If he is not a good contractor, but on the contrary represents that type whose work is known by our public improvements, he should not be rewarded with the office of mayor. His nomination is an indorsement and approval of waste and inefficiency. It should not be seriously considered. The real contest is between Osborn and McCormick. Charlie Hard says in a political advertisement that this fight is between Kaps and McCormick. His object is to frighten Judge Osborn's supporters among the business element to desert the Judge. But the business man, the home owner and the wage worker need not fear McCormick. If nominated and elected mayor he will give you the best City Engineer and the best service director he can secure for the salary paid. Factional Republican politics will not control his course. He will appoint men in whom you will take pride. He will confer with all classes. Merit and efficiency alone shall be his guide. If you decree that the new shall replace the old, the burden is upon the new to do the very best it can. We can't do any worse than the other fellows. Business men of Portsmouth, give this young man a chance and you shall have an administration in which you can take a just pride. Don't let the ghosts of the politically dead frighten you. One of their tricks has been to go about getting signed pledges; this is the old, over-worked hand wagon game. But did you ever stop to think what a reflection such a course is upon the voter asked to sign the pledge? It is practically telling him that they cannot trust his word. I read Judge Osborn's advertisement in the Morning Star. He says that McCormick is backed by Bannon, McElhanev and Ditty and that our main object is to assure domination of the party's affairs in this county. This primary election cannot affect our position in state politics. Such is not the purpose of this contest.

Says Opponents Are Against Willis

Next he says that Hard and Eckhart have a grievance against the Governor and his friends here and they wish to humiliate them. I grant that. They are bitter because they were not the only state appointees from this county. Both bitterly fought the Governor. We are either misunderstood or misrepresented. I cannot go into the details, but we offered everything in the interests of party harmony. If you only knew the extent to which we went in an endeavor to avoid this contest, the primary would only be a ratification. But with men who have an imaginary grievance there can be no harmony.

Now, the good Judge told us who was backing McCormick and who was backing Kaps. Why didn't he just as candidly tell us who is backing him? As I said before better days are dawning for Portsmouth. The skies are clearing. We will get you a clear track ahead lined only by white lights. You business men can help us. And we can help you. Let us get together and secure legislation from the next General Assembly to divorce the judicial from the administrative duties of the mayor. Let us abolish the out of place police court appendage to the office of mayor. Let the duties of the mayor consist in administering the business affairs of the city and let us have a separate municipal or police court to exercise judicial functions. We are willing to co-operate in the preparation of such a measure with the Board of Trade, Central Labor Council, the Merchant's Association and all other civic bodies. The police court duties of the mayor are unpleasant and if we confer that power upon a separate officer we have opened the way for better municipal government. The people's interests are our interests.

Be Sure and Vote for McCormick Next Tuesday

We will attend to Mr. Frick's case in November. Our opponents have resorted to such a course of slander and political trickery that we are bound to give you the best administration you ever had. No other course is open to us and you business men and home owners and wage workers will make no mistake by electing McCormick. We are willing to let the dead bury the dead and with our faces to the rising sun look only to the past as a record to be avoided just as far as possible.

Moving picture exhibits of the evils of the liquor traffic as he sees them; of his efforts to boom Massachusetts industries; of important incidents in the past campaigns when he was running as a Democrat, and of his famous old campaign alder and shabby slouch hat will form the main feature of what he predicts will be a "humming campaign."

Tells About New Hotel For Peerless

The Chillicothe News-Advertiser is building a new hotel for Portsmouth as the following will show:

"P. Bramwell Haynes, proprietor of the Haynes hotel, was in Portsmouth Monday, in the interest of a new $100,000 hotel which he is promoting in that city. The need of another first-class hotel, with more popular prices and nearer the downtown district than the Washington hotel has been recognized by the people of Portsmouth, according to Mr. Haynes, and the proposition is turning out favorably."

"Mr. Haynes says that several of the biggest business men in Portsmouth are interested in the new hotel."

"I plan to erect a 100-room hotel right in the heart of the business district if the proposition comes to a head," stated Mr. Haynes. "Every room will have a shower and I expect to have just what Portsmouth needs, a good hotel at lower rates than those charged by the hotel there now."

"How the deal will turn out will be known very shortly, Mr. Haynes claims."

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin eruptions are so common that they are often neglected. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use, even on a baby's tender skin—that is, the Resinol treatment. Resinol is the prescription of a Baltimore doctor, put up in the form of Resinol ointment and Resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful that thousands of other physicians have been prescribing it constantly for 20 years. Resinol stops itching instantly, and almost always heals the eruption quickly and at little cost. Resinol ointment and Resinol soap can be bought at any drugstore.

CLEARs BLOTCHY SKIN

Try Resinol soap for a week. You will be surprised to see how it clears and freshens your complexion, even in that short time. Used for the shampoo, it removes dandruff and keeps the hair live, rich and lustrous. This is because it contains the soothing, healing Resinol medication.

ERIE FLOOD STRICKEN, 25 DIE

MANY BUILDINGS SWEEP AWAY IN RUSH OF WATERS

Erie, Pa., Aug. 4.—Daylight here broke over a flood-stricken city with its business streets running rivers of water. Probably twenty-five lives were lost, property damage estimated at three millions of dollars, scores of homes and dozens of factories swept away, and the distress of homeless hundreds were the effect of an unprecedented storm which struck Erie and the immediate vicinity last night.

After almost an all-day rain a heavy thunderstorm culminated in a cloudburst. For an hour residents along the course of Mill creek through the east center of the city watched the slow rise of the stream, due to a rainfall of nearly three inches in six hours.

At 8:45 the Glenwood dam, three miles above the city, burst and a huge wall of water swept down through the city, carrying with it the homes of those who had waited until the last minute to leave, and in several cases the families still refused to seek safety.

Four blocks on either side of the stream on Main street, the main business artery of the city, were covered with a depth of six inches in five feet.

The Loomhuis Wagon Works, and the Nelson Machine Shop, each occupying nearly half a block, were the largest structures to be swept away. The Jarceki and Lovell Wood Working Plants, two of the largest manufacturing plants in the city, were covered with fifteen feet of water.

Early this morning gas mains all over the city were cut off, and telephone, street-car and electric lighting service were paralyzed.

The charitable societies, the armory, hotels and hastily organized shelter clubs gave refuge to hundreds who saved their own lives and a few meagre belongings.

The darkness, the danger of broken electric wires, and the twenty-five mile current of the

VILLA PLACES AGENT IN FOREIGN STORES

El Paso, Texas, August 4.—Business was again being transacted today by native merchants in Chihuahua, Mexico, according to official advice to Villa headquarters at Juarez, across the border from here, after a suspension of several days by order of General Villa, who claimed exorbitant prices were being exacted from the people.

Resumption, however, was said to be conducted under the regulations laid down by General Villa at the meeting of merchants held Saturday at Chihuahua City. The owners and employees supervising the operations of the stores, but "interventors" were placed in each store to prevent his regulations being violated. The Chihuahua commercial situation, in a modified form, has been extended to Juarez. Instructions were received today by the customs department to hold temporarily all importations until some definite agreement was reached in Chihuahua. This order was said to apply to importations stored in the customs warehouse and aboard trains waiting transportation to the south.

Representations have been made by the state department and British Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring Rice, against the confiscation by the Villa government of the Alabama Cotton Seed Products Company at Gomez Palacio, Chihuahua, a $3,000,000 corporation, of which John Brittingham, an American, is one of the principal owners. It was understood the plant was confiscated on refusal of a forced loan of $100,000 in American currency. It is said the corporation already has paid $250,000 in forced loans to the Villa government.

The stores of foreigners remained closed pending negotiations by the American consul, Marion Letcher, and the other consuls of Chihuahua, with minister of foreign relations, Alvaro Lombardo, of the Villa cabinet.

Reports received here from Columbus, N. M., state that all the Villa troops at Palomas, Casas Grandes and Ascension, in North-western Chihuahua have deserted.

WILSON AND AID TO FORCE MEXICAN CHIEFTAINS TO TERMS

Washington, Aug. 4.—Interest in tomorrow's conference on the Mexican problem between Secretary Lansing and diplomatic representatives of six Latin-American countries was heightened today, as further details of the origin of the plan for joint co-operation in pacifying the southern republic came to light.

One of the latest developments is the fact that the decision to ask aid of the Central and South American republics in settling the Mexican difficulty was reached by President Wilson in June when he was warning to the warring factions to settle their differences and restore peace went unheeded. The diplomats were invited June 30 to participate in a conference while the appeal to the Mexican factions was made June 20.

Announcement was withheld, however, pending the sanctioning of the plan by the Latin-American nations. It was considered likely today that the first step in the president's plan which will be submitted to the conferees by Secretary Lansing will be a last appeal to the factions to end the strife and arrange for a settled government.

If any factions fail to heed the warning the plan is said to include extension of moral and financial support to other factions. The plan is also said to include a restoration of a ban on war munitions to the revolting factions and a demand that railroad lines between Vera Cruz and Mexico City be kept open for the transportation of food supplies to the starving people of the capital. Failure to do this might result in joint steps by the United States and the Latin-American countries to take physical control of the capital and the railroad by force and to hold them pending restoration of peace.

KING REFUSES TO ACCEPT TERMS

Washington, August 4.—State department officials today were preparing the answer which the United States will make to Great Britain's reply to the latest American representations against interference with neutral commerce.

Great Britain, in her notes published today, refuses to accept the American contention that the orders in council are illegal and justifies the British course as being wholly within international law.

Great Britain, it is declared, will continue to apply the orders in council, but with every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals. It is denied that international law is violated by the blockading of neutral ports to cut off an enemy's commerce with foreign countries and Great Britain declines to allow the free passage of goods originating in Germany and territory under German control.

Great Britain's reply is embodied in two notes, one supplemental and together with the correspondence over the American steamer Neches, seized by the British while bound from Rotterdam to the United States with goods of German origin also published today, totals seven thousand words.

The supplemental note is a reply to American caveat giving notice that the United States would not recognize the orders in council in lieu of international law and demands prize court proceedings. The United States is invited, however, to submit to arbitration any prize court decision it holds unjust.

In the case of the steamer Neches detained under the orders in council, the note justifies British stoppage of commerce from Germany and German-controlled territory on the grounds that Germany has violated international law in her war against British and neutral commerce.

An answer to British notes shortly will be forthcoming, data for which has been in the course of preparation for some time.

The German note regarding the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye, probably will be given out late today for publication tomorrow morning.

"AMERICAN PROTEST UNSUSTAINABLE," SAYS ENGLAND

Washington, Aug. 4.—Great Britain's reply to the latest American representations against interference with neutral commerce rejects entirely the contention that the orders in council are illegal and justifies the British course as being wholly within international law.

"Unsustainable either in point of law or upon principles of international equity" is the British reply to the American protest against the blockade of neutral ports with an invitation to submit to international arbitration any cases in which the United States is dissatisfied with the action of British prize courts.

Great Britain's reply, embodied in two notes, one supplemental, was made public here last night and in London simultaneously by agreement between the two governments. With the notes was made public also the correspondence over the American steamer Neches, seized by the British while enroute from Rotterdam to the United States with goods of German origin. All the correspondence aggregates seven thousand words.

Changed conditions of warfare, the British note contends, require a new application of the principles of international law. The advent of the submarine, the airship and the alleged atrocities by German troops in Belgium are cited as justification for the exercise of extreme measures. The blockade is justified on the contention that the universally recognized fundamental principle of a blockade is that a belligerent is entitled to cut off by effective means the sea-borne commerce of his enemy.

The note reiterates that Great Britain will continue to apply the orders complained of, although, not without every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals, and observes that the American statistics show that any loss in trade with Germany and Austria has been more than overbalanced by the increase of other industrial activities due to the war.

In the general reply to the American representations against the orders in council Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, addressing Ambassador Page, begins by expressing the hope that he may be able to convince the administration in Washington "that the measures, we have announced are not only reasonable and necessary in themselves, but constitute no more than an adaptation of the old principles of blockade to the peculiar circumstances with which we are confronted."

"I need scarcely dwell," wrote Sir Edward, "on the obligations incumbent upon the allies to take every step in their power to overcome their common enemy in view of the shocking violation of the recognized rules and principles of civilized warfare of which he has been guilty during the present struggle."

Sir Edward then refers to atrocities in Belgium, poisoning of wells in German Southwest Africa, use of poisonous gases against the allied troops in Flanders, and finally the sinking of the Lusitania, to show "how indispensable" it is that a belligerent violates any fundamental principle of international law by applying a blockade in such a way as to cut off the enemy's commerce with foreign countries through neutral ports, if the circumstances render such an application of the principles of blockade the only means of making it effective. The government of the United States, indeed, intimates its readiness to take into account "the great changes which have occurred in the conditions and means of naval warfare since the rules hitherto governing legal blockade were formulated and recognizes that the form of close blockade with its cordons of ships in the immediate offing of the blockaded ports is no longer practicable in the face of an enemy possessing the means and opportunity to make an effective defense by the use of submarines, mines and air craft."

The only question, then, which can arise in regard to the measures resorted to for the purpose of carrying out a blockade upon these extended lines, is whether to use your excellency's words, they conform to the spirit and principles of the essence of the rules of war, and we shall be content to apply this test to the action which we have taken in so far as it has necessitated interference with neutral commerce."

Sir Edward Grey then refers to the American civil war blockade of

3,000 miles of coast with a small number of vessels, and recalls how the United States finally took recourse to blockade "neighboring neutral territory which afforded convenient quarters from which contraband could be introduced into Confederate territory and from which blockade running could be facilitated."

"Your excellency will no doubt remember," wrote Sir Edward Grey, "how, in order to meet this new difficulty, the old principles relating to contraband and blockade were developed and the doctrine of continuous voyages were applied and enforced under which goods destined to the enemy territory were intercepted before they reached the neutral ports from which they were to be re-exported."

"The difficulties which imposed upon the United States the necessity of re-shaping some of the old rules are somewhat akin to those with which the allies are now faced in the dealing with the trade of their enemy. Adjacent to Germany are various neutral countries which afford her convenient opportunities for carrying on her trade with foreign countries. Her own territories are covered by a network of railways and waterways which enable her commerce to pass conveniently through ports in such neutral countries as through her own. A blockade limited to enemy ports would leave open routes by which every kind of German commerce could pass almost as easily as through the ports in her own territory."

The note then refers to the case of the British ship, Springbok, seized by the United States cruisers during the Civil War while bound for the British West Indies, because her cargo was charged to be transported to the Confederate states. The supreme court of the United States sustained the seizure against the condemnation of a group of prominent international lawyers, although the United States and British governments took the broader view and recognized the development of the older method of blockade. No protest was made by Great Britain.

"We are interfering with no goods with which he should not be entitled to interfere by blockade," says the note. "If the geographical position and the conditions of Germany at present were such that her commerce passed through her own ports. We are taking the utmost possible care to interfere with commerce genuinely destined for or proceeding from neutral countries. Furthermore, we have tempered the severity with which our measures might press upon neutrals by not applying the rule which was invariably in the old form of blockade, that ships and goods on their way to or from the blockaded area are liable to condemnation."

The note then reviews at some length the various forms in which blockades have been maintained to show there have been no uniformity of practice in very essential points.

"There are many cases," Sir Edward says, "in which proofs that the goods were enemy property would afford strong evidence that they were of enemy origin or enemy destination and it is only in such cases that we are detaining them."

Sir Edward's note closes with the observation that "figures of recent years show that the volume of commerce with foreign countries is

WILLIS AND THE PRESIDENCY

The New York Sun, which is hoping for the election of a Republican as president to succeed Woodrow Wilson, does not grow enthusiastic over the mention of the name of one, Frank B. Willis, governor of Ohio. In fact the Sun is dismayed at the mention of Willis, judging by some of the recent utterances in its editorial columns for it speaks in one editorial of "his hopeless unfitness for responsible office."

Furthermore, the Sun, in discussing Governor Willis as a possible contender for the Republican nomination for president says of him:

"He is one of the bountiful supply of favorite son offerings for the next Republican convention's consideration. So is Mr. Fairbanks and so is Mr. LaRoquette and so is Mr. Norris and so on far down in the roll call until the heart grows weary at the mere thought of the roaring cataracts of oratorical rant the suffering thousands in the convention hall will endure before all this litter is cleared away and the business of nominating a candidate for the presidency begins."

This extraordinary attack upon the Ohio governor by one of the really great newspapers of the country and a newspaper favorable to his own party at that, is not only remarkable for its bitterness but also remarkable for the fact that it finds an answering echo in the minds of the great majority of the citizens of Ohio who have had best opportunity to judge Mr. Willis in action as an official; this view too finds expression not alone from the ranks of those opposed to Mr. Willis politically, but it finds bitterest expression in the ranks of his own party. There are thousands upon thousands of Republicans in Ohio today who regretfully say that Mr. Willis has not measured up to his job; that he is a sore disappointment and they receive mention of his possible candidacy for president with derisive smiles. Down here in Southern Ohio this feeling of hopelessness over the record made so far by Mr. Willis as governor is especially rampant among Republicans. The men who have been recognized as the bone and sinew of the Republican party for many years are the most outspoken in proclaiming what the New York Sun aptly describes as "Governor Willis' 'hopeless unfitness for responsible office' and they are equally outspoken in their determination to vote against him if the party is so short-sighted as to renominate him for governor next year.

It is remarkable, too, that while the Sun, representative of the conservative element of the Republican party, is speaking of Governor Willis' "hopeless unfitness for responsible office," Victor Burdick, one of the best and brightest of the Progressive party leaders, should also be attacking the Willis administration as hopelessly reactionary and blindly stand-pat, clinging to the old frazzled and worn-out ideas that brought Republicanism into disrepute and disaster. It all serves to bring out in bold relief the widespread sentiment of thinking people that Governor Willis has failed to measure up to the promise of his campaign for election.

He has been tried and he has been found wanting.

One of our New Boston friends seriously writes us to say that we are mistaken about them having a paved street. He says that they haven't any yet but are going to have a lot of them some of these days. "All right friend," but you see you have been so cut off from the rest of the world by your infernally bad roads and temporary roads that our only source of information is by the grape vine wireless and we probably misinterpreted the end, making it you had a paved street instead of going to have a paved street sometime before frost.

Our good young governor should order out our militia company to assist in recovering the pair of pants stolen from his appointee, Deputy Oil Inspector George Keller. If it isn't his majesty to steal an office holder's pants while he is in swimming and thereby force him to walk home in a barrel, then there can be no such crime in the American calendar.

The erudite and sapient Dolly Wise tells an anxious inquirer the Golden Rod is the national flower. We don't believe it. In the first place no competent authority has decreed the Golden Rod the national flower, and in the second, even if it had, the fact would remain that the Golden Rod isn't a flower at all, but a noxious and sickening weed.

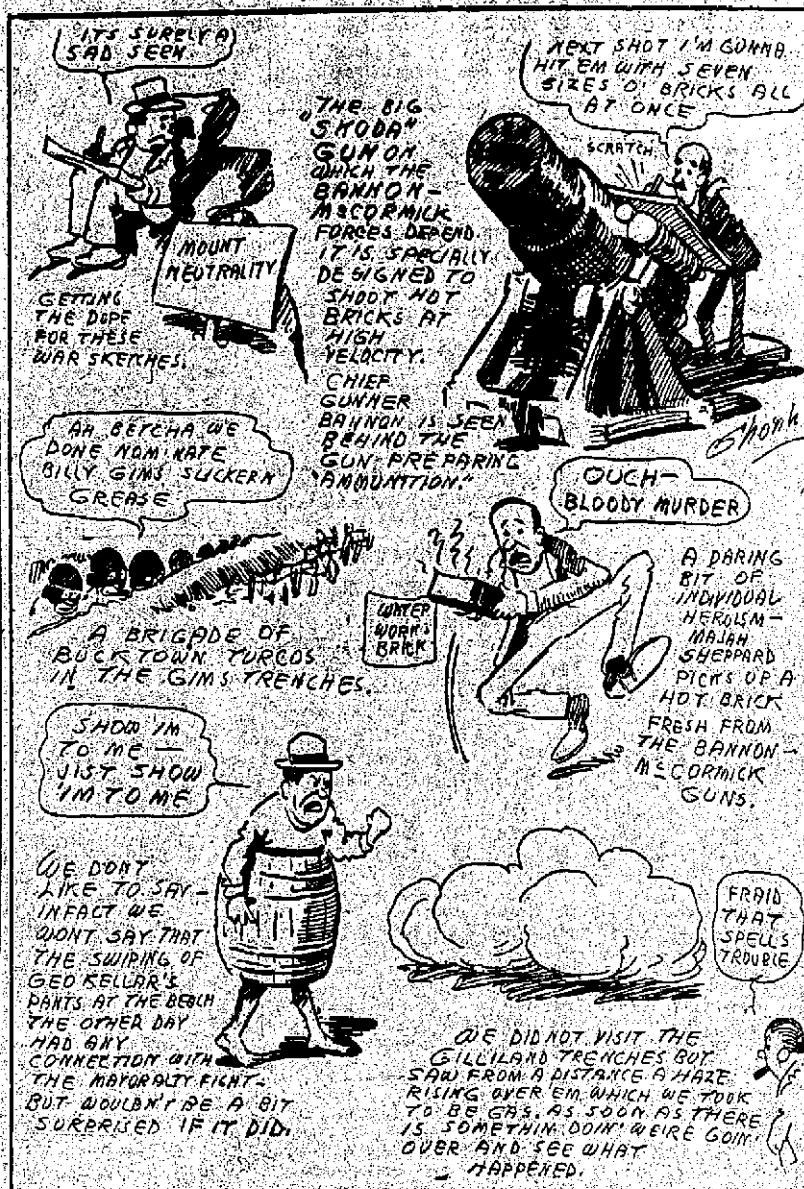

The funny things now is each of the five Republican candidates for the mayoralty nomination has enough votes pledged to give him a majority over all the others combined.

Now, for a fact, we do hope that temporary bridge won't do any more temporary business before Contractor Ruel gets ready to tear it up.

Poverty brings strange bed-fellows, but not a circumstance to those thrown together by politics of the spoils variety. Just look at "Hig" and "Mooge" fighting the gang and George Sheppard the bravest little gangster of 'em all.

Villa shouts "to hell with the United States", and then in the next breath rows he has had enough of them. Some men just can't be consistent.

JEALOUSY AND SARCASM

Editor Dan Davis of the Jackson Sun gets mad, then sarcastic, at our calling upon him to make good on his bluff about river city industries going to locate in Jackson town to get away from the floods. He flings off this remark in reply:

"Don't get excited now! We had reference to big towns and big industries. However, if you should happen to see some of our 'boosters' coming down with market baskets on their arms there may be some danger of Portsmouth losing a few shoe lasts and cow leather, which seems to be the products that the River City survives on. What a jealous lot that Times bunch is anyway. The thing that's worrying them, however, is not that industries are clamoring for a location in our city but because Jackson county has such big men. For instance you have never heard of a Portsmouth man being connected with the Redpath or any other Chattanooga. Sevier county never had a state chairman. These honors are common in Jackson county and we do not blame the Portsmouth fellows for being jealous."

Of course since the principal industry of Jackson is the bull of one of our cow leather plants we can understand how Editor Dan can get such a false impression of the true greatness of our peerless city. And if we catch any of the Jackson market basket brigade prowling around down here we will curtail them, ride 'em around town and give them something to talk about for the rest of their natural lives, that is if their nervous systems survive the shock of brief existence in a bustling city.

And as for Chattanooga lecturers, we guess we can stack Judge Blair up against Doc Hoy any old time. But when it comes to other great men such as state chairmen, we sorrowfully admit that Jackson has it on us. However, if we did have one we wouldn't try to show him honor by giving him a free ride in an undertaker's wagon after he came home from a victorious battle; nor would we stand around helplessly while the beneficiary of his victory booted him away from the scene of battle.

Good evening, Dan. Will that hold you for a while?

Sketches of Life
OLD NEW YORK
By Art. Intyre

New York, August 3.—The newspaper boys who were assigned by their city editors to do the Becker electrocution left New York for Sing Sing all pasty faced and white. Most of them were old timers and have seen a lot of death chair horrors but they seem never able to rise above the ghastliness of the execution of the death sentence.

Martin Green, of the Evening World, has probably seen more electrocutions than any other Park Row reporter of the present crop and he never fails to become nauseated by the sight. Every newspaper reporter who has covered an electrocution or hanging is one of the staunchest kind of adherents for the abolishment of capital punishment.

Henry James, the well-known ex-American, seems to be about the crabbiest party in the Pay-as-You-Enter war zone. He will never be arrested for applauding too belligerently at a picture show. Larry Giffen, who supplies producers with film scenarios, cabled James at his London club.

He intimated that quite a sizeable roll might be annexed if he would permit some of his stories to be made into film productions. Giffen had visions of husky commissions. Five hours later the bump came and here it is: "Thanks. Motion picture rights to my fictions not discussable."—Henry James.

New York has had seven days of real hot weather up today. The village is getting to be quite a smart summering place.

The mellow vesper bells make sweet The hush of the descending night, And the pale West still softly holds.

Reflection of waters, and the sound Of women's voices as they pass Both mingle with the quietude.

In which day fades as in a glass And memory with ghostly hand Plucks at the skirt of dreaming.

Thought To lift a sudden vision up, A tear sprinkled, fantasy wrought.

Oh, wonderful Old World, so rich So mellow, tender and so wise! Let for a while—your magic lift Your witchcraft dim—I close my eyes.

Oh, the wide meadows, with the moon A shimmer on their worlds of wheat! Oh, the fresh, fragrant breath of June.

The breeze that sweeps so wild and sweet From virgin forests, solitudes The farthest rover scarce may roam.

Green valleys with slow, winding streams, The sanctity and warmth of home!

Oh, my America, my own, The youngest, proudest, freest thing God ever gave a weary world.

To make its aching heart take wing! Oh, my America, my love, The strength and purity of day, I never was more wholly yours.

E. & W. DEPOT AT KINGSTON ROBBED

The E. & W. passenger and freight depot at Kingston was robbed and robbed again Tuesday night for the second time in the last two months.

The robbers gained entrance by climbing a window sash on the east side of the building. They removed an iron box from the side of the building and the last time the place was visited by "robbers" but found it empty. The company's large new safe was not disturbed. The robbers went into the freight house and carried off the lids of several boxes and a quantity of merchandise.

Early Leslie, the company's newly appointed special officer, will leave for Kingston Wednesday afternoon to begin an investigation.

MANY RUMORS AFLOAT ABOUT "HIGH YALLER"

The police officials continue to receive periodical tips concerning the whereabouts of Henry Glenn, alias "High Yaller," the alleged gun-man in the Baucus murder case, but when run down they invariably come out.

One of the latest reports was that "High Yaller" has been "holding forth" in an E. & W. camp in the mountains of West Virginia, moving about in perfect freedom and disregarding the advice of his friends, who urged him to either surrender or leave the country. He is said to have replied that he had not done anything to run away for, that it was "Jungle Shime" who murdered Detective James A. Baucus, and if they ever caught him they would "simply have me that's all." "High Yaller" is reported operating a crap game and bootlegging joint. He is also reported to have been seen at Winchester, Ky. lately.

BRITISH NOTE MAY SUBMIT SEWER BOND ISSUE TO VOTE

British note that the increased expenditures for the war for American communities have more than compensated for the loss of the German and Austrian markets.

In the supplemental note which is a reply to the American caveat given notice that the United States would not recognize the orders in council in lieu of international law, the British note that the United States does not understand to what divergence of views as to the principles of law applicable in cases before the prize court the government of the United States refers for I am not aware of any differences existing between the two countries as to the principles of law applicable in cases before prize courts.

The supplemental note then proceeds with a long legal argument to demonstrate the practicability of a prize court being governed by international law and at the same time by municipal law in the form of orders in council. It finally comes to the case of the steamer Zamora, in the present war in which the British court decided.

"The nations of the world need not be apprehensive that orders in council will emanate from the government of this country in such violation of the acknowledged laws of nations that it is conceivable that our prize tribunals, holding the law of nations in reverence, would feel called upon to disregard and refuse obedience to the provisions of such orders."

If the United States should be dissatisfied with decisions of British prize courts as sustained by the prize court, says Sir Edward, "the British government is prepared to consent with the United States, in order to decide upon the best way of applying the principle to the situation which would then have arisen."

To the American note in the case of the steamer Neches, Great Britain offers to make a special examination in the Neches case if hardship had been inflicted.

The British reply, in short, is a declaration to allow free passage to goods originating in Germany, or in a territory under German control. The general cargo of the Neches originated in Belgium.

The Movies

Valli Valli In "The High Road"
At the Lyric Today

One of the classic dramatic productions ever made is the elaborate "Metro Feature" at the Lyric today, Valli Valli in "The High Road." This famous diminutive, beautiful star will best be remembered as the star in "The Chocolate Soldier," and later in "The Purple Road," two great successes, in which her excellent work met with country-wide commendation. In the "High Road," she makes her debut on the screen and her excellent work in this powerful dramatic offering makes a grand entertainment for every lover of high class pictures. There are five parts and about 200 scenes in "The High Road." The first show this afternoon will be at 1:30, then at 3 and 4:30, tonight at 6:30, 8 and 9:30.

"Under Two Flags" is the interesting feature for tomorrow, a story that is known from sea to sea, a stirring picture in three parts taken from the novel by Ouida.

Friday's Paramount is another unusually strong offering "Brother Officers," a five part military social drama.

MAKES LAST MOVE TO AVERT STRIKE

New York, Aug. 4.—In a final effort to avert a strike of the 60,000 workers on women's garments in New York City, Mayor Mitchell's council of conciliation called a conference for today of the representatives of the garment workers' union and of the cloak and shirt makers' union. The union had given the manufacturers until midnight last night to accede to the findings of the council of conciliation but consented to extend the time limit until noon today in order to hold the conference. Should this meeting fail to settle the differences it was feared that a strike would soon begin as the union has voted in favor of it.
